CRIMSONS BEATEN IN FIRST HALF

Indians Scored 12 Points During the Opening Engagement to Harvard's 10—Vast Crowd Saw Great Battle.

Special to the Boston American.

STADIUM, Nov. 9.—Thirty thousand wildly excited spectators cheered loudly when the Harvard and Carlisle Indian football teams trotted on the gridiron this afternoon. It was to be a fierce struggle, and the spectators were nerved up to concert pitch.

Every seat in the Stadium was sold, and speculators, who had no difficulty in buying all the tickets they wanted, reaped a harvest on the day.

Long before the time for the game to begin there were surging crowds of enthusiasts without the gates of Soldiers Field. Impatiently pushing their way up to the ticket takers, they hurried to the seats their pasteboards called for. Then they settled back and watched the always interesting scenes that are enacted on a big football day at the Stadium.

It was a glorious day. Never were the conditions more perfect for the spectators. No wind to speak of and no ear muffs needed. The players would, perhaps, have liked it a bit cooler, but they made no complaints.

The teams spread over the field for limbering up and the Harvard band played "Up the Street" to start the enthusiasm up.

FIRST HALF.

The Indians won the toss and Burr kicked off for Harvard at 2:29. The ball went outside on the twenty-yard line. He kicked again to Houser inside his five-yard line and got back ten yards. Lockwood fumbled and Harvard got the ball on the Indians' thirty-five-yard line. Lockwood, on a forward pass at left, made ten yards. On the next rush Harvard fumbled and the Indians got the ball on their twenty-two-yard line.

The Indians got five yards at left end, and on a delayed pass at right Apollonio threw Payne.

On a fake kick Indians failed to gain. There was holding by the Indians, and they were penalized fifteen yards, the ball being on their fifteen-yard line for a first down. A fake kick netted five yards.

Houser passed to Newhall, who fumbled, and it was Carlisle's ball on their fifty-yard line.

Payne at right end went to middle. Houser bucked the centre for three yards. He repeated and just got first down on Harvard's fifty-yard line.

Carlisle Scores.

On a long forward pass the Indians got the ball after a mix-up on Harvard's twenty-five-yard line. Another forward pass at right end to Exendine put the ball on Harvard's three-yard line. On the next rush Houser scored and made an easy touchdown. Houser kicked goal. Score—Indians, 6; Harvard, 0.

Burr kicked off to Houser, behind Carlisle's goal line. He ran out to the twenty-eight-yard line, avoiding many tackles. Hendricks got eight yards at tackle. Houser, at right tackle, went to his forty-five-yard line. Macdonald got Houser for five yards. The Indians were holding, and were penalized fifteen yards for it, their twenty-five-yard line.

Houser, on a cross-buck to Hendricks, went around left end for the forty-five-yard line, where Newhall got him. Houser punted to Harvard's forty-yard line, on a fake kick Harvard failed to gain at center. Burr punted on a forward pass outside to the Indians' forty-seven-yard line. The ball got lost in the bleachers, and had to be picked out.

Houser made a good rush at right tackle but there was holding by the Indians, and they were penalized back to the 31-yard line. Hendricks got five yards at left end. Houser on fake kick left, as Burr nailed him on his 37-yard line. Houser punted to Newhall on his 50-yard line. He ran back to the Indians' 45-yard line.

Fumble Helps Harvard Score.

Newhall punted and after players on both teams had fumbled Harvard got the ball on the one-foot line. Apollonio then got over for a touchdown. Parker kicked goal. Score: Harvard, 6; Indians, 6.

Houser kicked off for the Indians for a touchback. Burr punted out from the twenty-five-yard line. Exendine caught the ball on his fifty-yard line and ran ten yards. Grant got Hendricks for no gain at centre. The Indians held on a forward pass and Harvard got fifteen yards to the Indians' forty-seven-yard line. Houser punted to Newhall on his thirty-five-yard line. On a fake kick Newhall got two yards. Burr punted to Houser on his thirty-five-yard line and he ran to forty-eight. Grant getting him. They were close to the side line and Hendricks piped him ten yards to midfield.

On a forward pass by Houser the Indians got the ball on Harvard's thirty-yard line. Then the three Indians on top of the ball when it landed and no Harvard man in sight. On a triple pass Grant got the ball on Harvard's twenty-six-yard line. Hendricks failed to gain at right tackle. Houser then tried for goal from the Harvard twenty-yard line, but failed.

Burr kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. The ball got to the Indians and Grant made good tackle. There was off side play, however, and Burr kicked out again from the twenty-yard line. The ball went to Mt. Pleasant on his forty-yard line, and he ran to Harvard's thirty-five-yard line.

Harvard Completely Fooled.

Houser at centre went to Harvard's twenty-yard line. He got four yards more with five minutes to play. Payne fumbled again at right end but the Indians recovered and got the ball on Harvard's six-yard line. They failed to gain at left tackle, but on the next play, a forward double pass, Exendine made the easiest kind of touchdown. Harvard being completely fooled. Mt. Pleasant kicked goal. Score—Indians 12, Harvard 6.

Burr kicked off to Exendine on the ten-yard line. Houser failed at left end and Mt. Pleasant kicked to his forty-yard line. Lockwood pulling off one of the Indians' hands. Harvard inked signals, but Grant got five yards. Newhall gained to the Indians' twenty-five-yard line. Burr tried a forward pass, but the Indians got the ball on their eight-yard line. Mt. Pleasant kicked to Newhall, who made a fair catch on the Indians' forty-yard line.

Parker Kicks a Field Goal.

Parker tried for a goal from the field and made it. Score—Indians, 12; Harvard, 10.

Houser kicked off to Lockwood who made a fine run of twenty-four yards. On a fake kick Harvard lost two yards. Burr punted to Mt. Pleasant on his forty-five-yard line, and Bird nailed him. Mt. Pleasant kicked to Newhall on his thirty-yard line, and he ran ten yards dodging several tackles. Time called for end of half. Score, Indians, 12; Harvard, 10.

Houser got three yards on the Indians' 32-yard line. Lockwood, on a forward pass to the Indian Payne on the Indians' 40-yard line. On the kick Mt. Pleasant at right end ran to his 45-yard line. Houser, behind Lubo, at left end, went to yards. Parker was injured and retired. The Indians fumbled and Grant got ball for Harvard. Lockwood ran to the Indians' 40-yard line. A couple of line plunges with Harvard playing desperately, put ball on the Indians' 30-yard line.

Houser kicked off to Rand, who ran back to 18-yard line. Newhall lost on quarterback run. Newhall punted to Mt. Pleasant on Harvard's 48-yard line. He was tackled by Fish as he was making a fair catch, and Harvard was penlized 15 yards, putting ball on 32-yard line, where Houser tried for field goal. The ball hit the cross bar and bounded into the field.

The Indians scored another touchdown on a forward pass by Mt. Pleasant and a rush by Houser. Mt. Pleasant failed at goal. Score—Indians 23, Harvard 15.

There was no further scoring, the ball passing up and down the field as the result of brilliant playing on both sides. Final score—Indians 23, Harvard 15.

2 KILLED, 40 INJURED IN RAILROAD WRECKS

FREIGHT CRASHES INTO FAST B. & A. LIMITED; TROLLEYS COLLIDE IN RHODE ISLAND.

In railroad and trolley collisions in Massachusetts and Rhode Island to-day two men were killed and probably forty passengers injured.

The Southwestern Limited, over the Boston & Albany, Chicago bound, was run into by a freight train just outside of West Brookfield at 10:30 to-day, when the freight was shunted, it is said, right on to the track on which the Limited was at the time whirling by.

Baggagemen Hyde of the limited was killed instantly.

A partial list of the killed and injured is as follows.

Charles Hyde, express brakeman, of Boston, killed; Edward Patrick, express conductor, critical, will die; T. J. Smith of Boston, injured; A. A. Harris, Boston, injured; Oscar Harris, Boston, injured; Owen Benon, Boston, injured; W. L. Grant, Boston, injured.

A freight car on the Pascoag & Woonsocket Street Railway, while climbing a steep half-mile grade 200 yards in advance of a well-filled passenger car, near Slatersville, R. I., started to slip back, and, the brakes refusing to work, crashed into the car behind.

Selim Michle, a Syrian passenger, was instantly killed.

Six Have Broken Arms.

Six of the trolley car's passengers received broken arms and legs, while twenty-five or thirty others were cut by flying glass and terribly shaken up.

The Southwestern Limited over the Boston & Albany, late at the time, it is said, was trying to make up for lost time, and was bowling along just outside the West Brookfield yard at a lively rate of speed. A freight train had taken a siding to allow the fast passenger train to pass. It is reported that the freight was shunted from the siding too soon, and that the locomotive struck the second car of the limited, derailing that car and two others.

Baggage Master Killed.

Baggage Master Hyde of the Limited, who was killed, lived in Albany, N. Y. His father is said to be a Boston & Albany road master.

As the result of the wreck at West Brookfield the Boston & Albany tracks were blockaded for several hours, making the through trains all late.

The buffet car next to the passenger engine was badly smashed and the colored porter was injured. Several of the passengers were thrown from the track and wrecked. The rondlwd was torn up for hundreds of feet.

Many of the passengers who were thrown from their seats when the trains struck received bad bruises and cuts from the glass.

At Slatersville, R. I., the trolley cars collided on the steep grade just outside the town at 9:25 to-day. Motorman Daniels (illegible was running the freight car, while Motorman William Cudby was in charge of the passenger car, of which Elmer Jillson was conductor.

The freight car was climbing the steep grade with the passenger car following well to the rear. The freight car wheels began to slip and then the car started to run backward down the hill.

Passenger Killed Outright.

Motorman Gilmore did everything he could to stop his car, but the brakes would not hold, and the heavy freight car tore into the passenger car, completely wrecking the vestibule and the forward end. The Syrian passenger was killed outright.

Edward Prior, Jr., aged eleven, of Slatersville, received a compound fracture of his left thigh, and his right ear was torn off.

Edward Prior, Sr., had several ribs fractured and internal injuries, as well as the loss of an ear.

Several May Die.

The other injured were:

Honorea Vandall of Woonsocket; both legs fractured. His condition is critical.

J. Henry St. Jean of Woonsocket, compound fracture of both legs.

William Coffey, motorman of Woonsocket; compound fracture of right leg; condition critical, may die.

Mrs. Amanda Burlingame of Providence, left leg fractured.

Clinton F. Thayer of Woonsocket, right knee cap broken, badly bruised about the body and probably internally injured.

John Rivers of Woonsocket, fifty-six years old, hip crushed and internal injuries; may die.

Chester Turcot of Woonsocket, left heel crushed.

Oliver Rondeau, nineteen years old, of Woonsocket, face badly cut by glass, body lacerated and bruised and probably internal injuries.

The seriously injured, together with fifteen others, were taken to the Woonsocket Hospital in ambulances.

LINEHAN WARS ON PROBERS

Hires Halls to Carry on His Campaign Against the Finance Board.

ATTACKS COMMISSIONERS

"I shall devote my speeches to a consideration of the private lives of some of the men connected with the Finance Commission."

Senator Frank J. Linehan, in these words, announced to-day his intention of making a fierce attack at the South Boston meetings to be held to-morrow evening at former Mayor Nathan Matthews, chairman of the Finance Commission, and former District Attorney Michael J. Sughrue, counsel for the commission.

The meetings are to be held in Gray Hall, in Ward 14, and in the ward-rooms of Ward 15. The meetings are to be held ostensibly to boom the candidacy of William A. Newton, Linehan's candidate for the Board of Aldermen.

Linehan will resume his fight against Chairman Matthews and Lawyer Sughrue along the lines indicated when he broke up the meeting of the commission on Thursday evening and the latter's request of the police. Expecting a repetition of the scene, a large crowd was drawn to the hearing last evening. A squad of policemen was on hand. There was no excitement.

Police Squad on Hand.

The Commissioners themselves looked relieved as they got out of the building without the expected attack from Linehan. A squad of four policemen from the Lagrange Street Station in charge of Sergeant Clinton E. Bowley, present by request of the Commission, were also relieved to find that their services were not needed.

They were taking no chances, however, and did not leave their posts until Senator Linehan had left the building.

The Senator suffered no word hemorrhage last night but got in a few gentle flings, furnishing the crowd with some amusement by succeeding in discomfiting the expert engineer employed by the Commission.

Ordered to His Seat.

There was one warm little clash which caused the audience to pick up its ears. That was when Mr. Feeney, compelled to use the "deaf and dumb" method of examination of witnesses, was submitting some questions to Chairman Matthews which he wished asked of City Engineer William Jackson, who was on the witness stand. Linehan had walked over to the witness and was conversing with him.

"Mr. Linehan, it is totally improper for you to talk to a witness on the stand. You ought to know that," said the chairman with some vigor.

"About anything goes here so far as I can see," replied the Senator irrelevantly as he walked toward his seat.

"No improper conduct on your part will go here. Kindly take your seat," said Mr. Matthews.

"As long as you keep straight I will," shot back Linehan as he sat down.

Accuses Matthews.

Previous to the opening of the hearing Senator Linehan walked up to Mr. Matthews and made the accusation that Matthews, John F. Keenan and John A. Sullivan had visited several newspaper offices after Thursday night's stormy hearing and had endeavored to have stories printed to the effect that Linehan had brought the crowd of thugs with him from South Boston, some of whom had taken part in the riotous Democratic State convention at Springfield. Matthews would make no reply.

"You are responsible for those stories, and you do not dare stand behind them," said Linehan angrily, but could get no answer.

When Chairman Matthews read off a list of rules to govern hearings of the Commission, drawn up as a result of Thursday night's meeting, Linehan evidently believing them to be the product of the brain of Commissioner John A. Sullivan smiled sarcastically at that member and said in a voice which could be heard by all:

Worse Than Emmet Jury.

"Why don't you make it a criminal offence and fix the penalty as fine or imprisonment, John?" "John" did not answer.

"This is worse than Robert Emmet's trial," said the Senator pleasantly.

These few incidents afforded about the only relief to the monotony of listening to engineers expounding differences between yards. Some information which should prove extremely interesting to the taxpayers was brought out, however, under the examination of Attorney Sughrue.

City Engineer William Jackson testified that although he had told Royal Institutions Commissioner John R. Martin that $31,500 was too high a price to pay for the Deer Island wall, the contract was let to Linehan's Atlas Construction Company at this figure.

Mr. Jackson's estimate of the cost of the work was $45,000. Engineer Harrison P. Eddy, employed by the Finance Commission, testified that his estimate of the cost, allowing for a fair margin of profit, was $41,130.

Walter F. Robinson, engineer for the United States Government, testified that he made an estimate when the Government considered erecting the wall itself, and that his figure was $36,000, exclusive of ten per cent. for contingencies.

City Engineer Jackson testified that the schedule of prices for machinery in the contract was Linehan's own schedule. He, himself, had merely made the schedule for labor.

Engineer Eddy testified that although the contract is a "fixed cost plus fixed profit" one, Senator Linehan has, according to his estimating, been clearing $270 a month on the machinery used on the work, this being the difference between a fair price and the price paid Linehan, which was based, Eddy testified, on Mr. Jackson, by Linehan himself.

Mr. Eddy testified that no proper check was made of the lumber used by the contractor, and that the check on the cement was allowed to be made by one of Linehan's own employees.

A fair price per barrel for cement would be $1.60, according to Mr. Eddy, while the city is paying $1.75. Lumber for which the city is paying Linehan $27 per thousand feet scheduled according to Mr. Eddy, be paid for only at the rate of $24.

Mr. Feeney by the "deaf and dumb" method of cross-examination, and prompted by Senator Linehan, had a lot of fun with Mr. Harrison P. Eddy, the expert engineer employed by the Finance Commission.

The questions written out by Mr. Feeney and put by Mr. Matthews, brought forth the information that Mr. Eddy in his answers to Mr. Sughrue was following typewritten copy, a similar copy being in the hands of the examiner.

Engineer Eddy on the Rack.

He was informed by Mr. Mathews that while he was allowed by the rules of evidence to refresh his memory by the use of notes he could not be allowed to read his answers.

Mr. Feeney also brought out that Mr. Eddy in his engineering experience had never been engaged in the construction of a concrete wall. The nearest he had ever come to it was the building of a concrete basin.

He admitted that he had inspected the wall at Deer Island but twice. His estimate was made on the unit basis, he figuring the cost of the concrete at so much a yard.

MAGRATH ENDS AUTOPSY ON MONDAY

Medical Examiner Magrath announced to Boston to-day that the chemist's analysis in the mysterious death of Walter F. Baker, the wealthy Boston club man, will be completed on Monday.

Edward F. Baker, the brother of the dead man, left Boston hurriedly for New York last night, and it is believed that he was summoned in connection with the will, which leaves $10,000 to Mrs. Frank H. Hurd and about $100,000 to her daughter.

Mr. Magrath stated at noon to-day:

"A string of poisons half as long as one's arm must be tested for before the analysis is completed, and Dr. Reed is going about the work in the most thorough and systematic manner.

"Whatever the outcome, such a scientific inquiry cannot but result in full justice to everybody concerned. This is true if poison was administered to Walter F. Baker and equally true if the results are entirely negative."

The mystery surrounding the death of Mr. Baker, who was a wealthy Boston clubman, was intensified when J. Kendrick, manager of the Kid McCoy garage, who furnished the machine in which Baker took his death ride, told a story which contradicts in almost every essential particular those which have previously been related regarding the illness of the clubman before he started on the automobile trip.

Kendrick declares that Baker came to the garage at 11:30 on the night he died with Harry Lee, and left with Lee and Louis Sniffen in the auto, apparently in good health and perfectly sober. This is the precise hour that Harry Lee says Baker was ill in Brown's chop house, and Lee states he conducted his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hurd and Mrs. Natalie Young, to him.

After the statement by his employer, Chauffeur Sniffen refused to make any addition to his statement of yesterday.

"I'll talk in court, if the case comes to court and not before," he declared.

Baker in Good Spirits.

"Walter F. Baker and Harry Lee came to the garage first at 10 o'clock," said Mr. Kendrick. "They said they wanted to engage an automobile to take them out to Bogota, and they said nothing of any one else accompanying them. Mr. Baker introduced himself as Walter F. Baker and answered the descriptions I have heard of the man. Baker, at this time, was in good health, so far as I could observe. He made no complaint and appeared to be bright and alert. He gave no evidence then, nor at 11:30, when he returned with Lee for the machine of being either ill or under the influence of liquor. Both men were entirely sober, as far as I could judge. What I mean is that they impressed me as men in the full possession of their faculties.

"So much was this so that they arranged that if the machine was absent three hours on the journey the charge was to be $11, and, if longer, a greater price. If I had known that others were going a greater price would have been charged.

"As it was, I selected a small two-seated machine which had seen much use, fearing to send a better one over the Jersey roads at night. Mr. Baker and Mr. Lee got into the machine with Sniffen, the chauffeur, and the latter has told me since that they went directly to Brown's chop house, which Baker and Lee entered, being absent about twenty minutes.

Woman Joined Party.

"Sniffen told me," continued Mr. Kendrick, "that when Baker and Lee reappeared they were accompanied by a woman and another man, who came out of the chop house with them, and that at this time Baker did not show the least evidence of being ill.

"He told me also that, after leaving Brown's chop house, the journey was straight to the ferry. He said nothing about a trip to the Nottingham. He was sober apparently well enough when they started and that he did not notice anything was the matter with him until they reached the Hurd home in Bogota. Then Baker groaned in getting out of the automobile and appeared to feel ill. He had to be helped.

"Sniffen said he did not think much of this at the time, but ascribed it merely to the cold ride over the rough roads at night. He said he did not hear any connected conversation on the road, because he was looking out for ruts in the road and did not have time to pay attention.

FARMERS OPEN WAR, REFUSE TO SHIP MILK

The milk war has begun. In a number of towns in the central section of the State the farmers to-day refused to ship milk to Boston and when the trains stopped they found empty cans.

The milk contractors in a letter sent to the producers some time ago gave the farmers until Monday to sign the contracts. The farmers started the war themselves to-day.

At Rutland, Mass., the trains usually get 100 cans of milk. These hundred cans were found empty this morning. At West Rutland the milkmen found all of the twenty-five cans at the station empty.

At New Braintree the producers usually get 500 cans of milk. Four of them at this place signed the contracts, and they delivered only sixty cans to-day, making the consignment from this point 440 cans short.

Answer Trust's Threats.

At other stations the train men found similar conditions, and Boston's milk supply for to-morrow will be hundreds of cans short.

Just before November 1 the contractors sent out contracts, accompanied by letters, in which it was stated that unless the contracts were signed before November 1 the milk would be subjected to a reduction of one cent a can. The conductor had an idea that this threat would head most of the producers off, but this threat was almost completely ignored, and the farmers resolutely stood by their guns.

Finding that the situation was becoming critical and fearing that the producers would actually send an independent car into Boston, a circumstance that threatened the Milk Trust, the contractors Thursday decided to send out another scout letter to the producers to see if they could not be whipped into line. The action of the farmers to-day was their answer to the last letter.

To Sell Milk Direct.

Within thirty days the farmers hope to sell their own independent milk trains going to Boston, when they will sell all directly to the milk retailers of the city. Should they not be able to do this satisfactorily they will establish their own milk wagon routes.

ARREST 10 MEN NAMED BY GIRLS

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 9.—Stories told to the police by eight girls, ranging from eleven to fifteen years, have led to the arrest of ten well-known business men. The mother of one of the girls told the authorities that her daughter had been away from home for three days and mentioned a certain house in which she believed the child was being kept. The police visited the place, found the missing girl, seven others, heard their stories and arrested the men they accused.

CONSOLIDATED STEAMSHIP CO. NOW MORGAN'S

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The Consolidated Steamship Company, the principal concern of Charles W. Morse, who was ousted from the Bank of North America and other big financial corporations, has passed to J. P. Morgan. The directors will meet on Monday to prepare a statement announcing the change of control.

The big steamship concern, controlling all the coastwise Atlantic steamships except the few that are owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company is another one of the immense corporations that have been acquired by Mr. Morgan in his handling of the financial disturbance. The banker got the company from Mr. Morse before he had forced control of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company into the hands of the United States Steel corporation. The passing of the Consolidated to the control of Mr. Morgan came about in the same way as the change of the ownership of Tennessee Coal and Iron Company.

ORPHANED BY MOTHER'S TRAGIC END

Three-year-old Margaret Tobin who, at home with her aged grandfather, cried for "mamma," who was lying dead, crushed by an elevator.

BABY CRIES FOR MAMMA KILLED BY ELEVATOR

Mrs. Margaret Tobin Crushed to Death Under Big Car in Kimball Building.

CHILD IS INCONSOLABLE

"Mamma! Where's my mamma?"

Little Margaret Tobin, three years of age, cried for her mamma early to-day, instinctively knowing that something was wrong, although no one had told her that her mother had been crushed to death this morning beneath an elevator in the Kimball building.

The child's grandfather, Patrick Kelly, eighty-four years of age, took the little one on his knee and tried to comfort her, while tears streamed down his wrinkled face.

The dead woman was the sole support of her helpless father and no less helpless child. They lived at No. 61½ Somerville avenue, Somerville. Tobin, it appears, deserted his wife and child shortly after the baby was born. None of the relatives know where he is or if he is alive.

Mrs. Margaret Tobin worked as a scrub woman in the big office building at No. 18 Tremont street. She went to her work as usual to-day, and was on one of the upper floors when she accidentally lost her footing and fell into the elevator well. She was crushed to death by the elevator.

Joseph F. Hood was running the elevator. He tried to stop it, but he was too late.

When a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN reached the humble home of the Tobins to-day the picture presented by the orphaned child and the grief-stricken grandfather was most pathetic. Friends of the dead woman were doing what they could, but they could not satisfy the baby girl, who kept crying:

"Mamma! I want my mamma!"

TWO BOSTON WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Machine Overturned in South Attleboro; Mrs. Stevens Has Collar Bone Broken.

Mrs. Helen Stevens and Miss Ella Williams of Boston were injured in an automobile accident in South Attleboro near the Pawtucket line at 9:30 o'clock last evening. They are sisters and were riding in the automobile of Dr. Charles Reed of North Attleboro, who was running the machine, when the crash came. He sustained a cut on the head. Mrs. Stevens had her collar bone broken and Miss Williams sustained a severe shock. Dr. Reed said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"Mrs. Stevens and Miss Williams, her sister, visited my office in Attleboro yesterday to have some work done and I was taking them in my auto to Pawtucket where they could take a train for Boston. When near the Pawtucket line I saw a horse and buggy coming and turned the auto to one side to pass the carriage and my machine ran up an embankment and was overturned. Fortunately we all fell on one side and the machine did not fall on us. Dr. John F. Lynch of Pawtucket was summoned and attended to our injuries. Then Mrs. Stevens took a trolley to Pawtucket and went from there to Boston by train."

Dr. Reed said that Mrs. Stevens's husband is employed in Boardman's ticket agency on Washington street.

FAIRBANKS GUILTY IN SECOND DEGREE

TO-DAY CONVICTED OF KILLING MRS. MARY PAGE GROUT IN VERMONT.

NEWFANE, Vt., Nov. 9.—Guilty of murder in the second degree was the verdict returned by the jury which since 4 p. m. Friday had been deliberating on the evidence in the case of William Fairbanks, charged with murdering Mrs. Mary Page Grout at Saxton's River.

The jury reached a decision late and reported at a special session of the court, convened shortly after 8 a. m. After the formula, Amos S. Gallup, foreman, reported the verdict, the jurymen were polled individually by order of Judge Seneca Haselton, the justice who presided at the trial.

Fairbanks received the verdict calmly. It is expected that sentence will be imposed some time later in the day.

Fairbanks, in a fit of jealousy, shot and killed Mrs. Grout. Then he turned his weapon on himself, inflicting what was thought to be a mortal wound.

For several weeks his life was despaired of. The trial has been in progress nearly four weeks.

BATTLE FOR BRITISH DUKE'S GREAT FORTUNE

New Yorker's Story of Dual Life of Eccentric Noble Creates Sensation.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Detectives are delving deeply into the past of Robert Caldwell, the New Yorker, who says he encountered a mock funeral for Thomas Charles Druce, a petty tradesman, that the latter, who was really, Caldwell asserts, the fifth Duke of Portland, might disappear as Druce and become nothing but a Duke again.

The Duke's descendants are striving desperately to "punch holes" in George Hollamby Druce's story that he is a descendant of the Duke of Portland.

One of the things the detectives hope to disprove is Caldwell's claim that he treated the late Kaiser for the throat trouble which subsequently caused his death. If they can show this assertion to be untrue they believe it will cast discredit on the American's story that he met Portland-Druce many times, while curing him of an enlargement of the nose.

They are also looking up facts in connection with Caldwell's story of an alleged plot by which the latter says A. T. Stewart's widow was deprived of most of her husband's estate.

They have an idea that they may be able to upset his assertion that Judge Hilton destroyed Stewart's original will, drew up another one, afterward confessed to Mrs. Stewart in writing what he had done, and finally got his confession back through an agent in her house.

Again, his affidavit that Stewart's body was stolen from the cemetery, and that the widow was compelled to sacrifice an immense sum to get it back, is under close scrutiny.

BOOTH SAILS; IS CHEERED BY THOUSANDS

"If I Live I Shall Come Back," Says Aged Leader of the Salvation Army.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—To the music of several bands and the cheering of thousands of his devoted followers, General William Booth, head of the Salvation Army, sailed to-day for London, after completing what will probably be his last tour of the United States and Canada. He will make the trip on the American liner St. Louis.

General Booth and his daughter, Commander Eva Booth, drove to the pier in an automobile. As the motor car came into view there was a wild cheer from the Salvationists, to which General Booth responded with bows to right and left. As the big liner headed down the river the bands struck up "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Before sailing, General Booth said: "You have almost killed me with kindness in the five weeks I have been among you. I love you all. I pray for your salvation. I pray for the salvation of the President and the American people, of the government of poor old England, of the police here and of you all.

"If I live I shall come back to visit you."

General Booth's last night in New York was devoted to a farewell meeting held in City Hall park. Standing on the steps of the City Hall he spoke a few farewell words to the thousands who had gathered to bid him "good bye." Sixty-four lusty lunged Salvationists armed with megaphones repeated his words so that every syllable of his parting utterances carried to every person in the huge crowd.

WOMAN SLAIN BY OLD SWEETHEART

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Dora Rebel, a pretty matron of thirty-one, was shot down and killed as she sat at breakfast with her two young children to-day by Joseph Neimkewitz, an old sweetheart, because she had refused to answer his ardent love letters begging her to leave her husband.

DESPONDENT, KILLS SON AND HERSELF

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—A double tragedy was discovered to-day by the Jamaica police when the dead bodies of Mrs. Simon J. Mallon and her twelve-year-old son by a former marriage, Dudley H. Brown, were found on the floor of a bedroom in the home of her sister at No. 144 Union Hall avenue. It was apparent that the mother, who had been despondent because of family troubles, had deliberately taken the life of her son and herself.

SHERIFF WHITE, GEN. BRAYTON'S MAN, RESIGNS

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 9.—General Hunter C. White, high sheriff of Providence County and one of the prominent politicians who has been assailed because of his close association with Ross Brayton, the Republican leader, has resigned from the city committee. He resigned a year ago from the chairmanship of the State committee. Secretary Richard W. Jennings is talked of for the latter honor.

Sheriff White says in his letter: "Believing that the continued success of Republican principles in the city and State will be the better subserved by my retirement as chairman of the Republican City Committee and as a member of the Ninth Ward committee, I hereby resign the chairmanship and have also tendered my resignation as a member of the Ward 9 Committee."

LITTLE BOY RUN OVER AND KILLED

ATTLEBORO, Nov. 9.—George Adams, aged five, son of George A. Adams, was run over by a tipcart on Dunham street to-day and instantly killed. The wagon is owned by R. H. Jones, and was driven by Charles L. Jones, the child was playing by the roadside with a little girl, and suddenly stepped from behind a tree before the horse.

DENY AID OF SONS TO MRS. BRADLEY IN MURDER TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Denied the aid and comfort of her two little sons, whose evidence she felt might influence the jury in her favor, Mrs. Annie Bradley will Monday face trial for the killing of ex-Senator Arthur Brown of Utah a year ago.

The testimony of the two boys—her sons and Senator Brown's—will not be allowed. The court will decide that the evidence of the handsome children, Arthur Brown, Jr., and Montgomery Brown, is "irrevelant, incompetent and immaterial," and they will not be allowed to appear in court during the trial.

Mrs. Annie Bradley, who begins her life fight Monday, was wife of the man she killed, except in law. Her children bear his name. After suffering humiliations of all sorts at his hands and denied the recognition she felt was her due, she purposed him to Washington when she felt he was plundering her, and send him down after his cold-blooded refusal of all her demands.

By Ada Patterson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—In the last days before the trial the eccentricities of the unhappy little dark-eyed prisoner, Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, deepen. Always a bookworm, she is unable in the final days before the trial, when her life or death shall be weighed in the scales of chance and the skill of her attorneys, to concentrate wholly upon the task of preparing her testimony. Instead, she turns to books. And between the pages she loves, the spectre of her ruined life and the sardonic face of the man who caused that ruin peep out at her.

"There," she says, her finger upon a stanza she had read, reread and memorized, "There we have the true life story of Arthur Brown." And she read:

"His life was one long war with self sought foes,
Or friends by himself insulted; for his mind had grown suspicion's sanctuary.
And those for its own cure incenses the blind,
Unless taught to regard with fury strange and blind
But he was a brave—a kind—generous—what not?
Sure such might be which skill could never find."

But he was tempted by disease or woe
To that worst state of all, which wears a resolute show.

She copied another book, at lines heavily underscored and tear-blotted:

"Alas that neither vows nor bonds can certify possession.

Her eyes, full of infinite mourning, look out of the window of the United States jail upon the bare branches that beat against the window while her lips repeat, "Neither bonds nor vows can certify possession."

Slain Man's Foe Defends Her.

The woman who, after enduring eight years of humiliation, finally sought retribution, in a frenzied moment killed ex-Senator Brown of Utah, has by a pleturesque stroke of the artist Fate, chosen as her chief counsel his life-long opponent, rival and foe.

Judge Orlando W. Powers was long an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Utah. He was appointed by Cleveland and while the State was yet in territory. Arthur Brown pleaded many cases before him. When the judicial ermine fitted upon him, the brilliant, erratic attorney gave credit to his own legal powers. When they were against him he complained loudly and bitterly of judicial discrimination. In a cynical retort the Judge applied to him a term that followed him to his death—"Arthur Brown, Prince of Unreason."

Their personal antagonism had a much earlier inception than those days of the repetion of bench to bar. A lonely young boy in his teens, born in Postineville, N. Y., and had never seen a mountain until he was sixteen, Orlando W. Powers, went into the office of Arthur Brown in Lansing, Mich., and asked to be permitted to study law with Brown's firm. The lawyer made a contemptuous reply. The lad went to the office of the rival firm and in time became a partner.

Fate, the artist, made them further foils at the bar and in the politics of Utah. Brown, a Republican, was elected United States Senator. Powers, a Democrat, withdrew his name after his party proposed his candidacy for the same office.

A score of times their acumen was pitted against each other in cases celebrated in the West.

Arthur Brown's dislike for his rival was kept in constant flame was the recollection of the younger man's words to him when they met on the streets of Lansing before Arthur Brown's flight from that city with a young woman for whom he deserted his wife and who afterward became the second Mrs. Brown.

"I know what you're planning Brown, don't do it," said the younger man. Stories over women are poor conquests at best. There's a God in Heaven and his right arm men call retribution."

"I can't help it," was the answer of the man.

Scores Brown as Coward.

"You're a miserable coward, Arthur Brown," the youth had dared to say.

They were words which this bitter-tongued man never forgave. Wherever they met, that place was a forum, and whenever they met the elder man's tongue wagged bitter and the younger man turned heater and jibed at the man who would be king.

Logical then was Judge Powers' half serious remark yesterday:

"I hope that wherever he is, Arthur Brown knows that I am defending this little woman."

The chief counsel in the Bradley case has come to the East with a reputation as a clever forager and resourceful one as that which followed D. M. Delmas, when he came from the Pacific Coast to defend Harry Thaw.

Besides Judge Powers and his partner, the firm of Wells, Hoover & Wells of Washington counts Mrs. Bradley's interests.

Surrounded by this bodyguard, Mrs. Bradley will Monday begin her battle for life.

SAVED FROM FELON'S DEATH, BILLIK HAPPY

Convicted Slayer and Family in Reunion, Now Expects Acquittal.

HOPES FOR NEW TRIAL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 9.—Herman Billik, the fortune teller, held a reunion yesterday afternoon with his family in the county jail at the time he once expected to be mounting the steps of the scaffold. Mrs. Billik, with their three children, Herman, Jr., Emil and Edna, were permitted to see the convicted murderer. While they were present, Attorney Henry Meakley, who had just returned from Springfield, walked in with the formal order of supersedeas which prevented Billik's hanging to-day.

"I am the happiest man living. I believe I'm going to have some more good luck—a new trial and acquittal," declared Billik.

It developed to-day that no chemical analysis of the organs of William Niemann, husband of Mrs. Emma Niemann, Billik's chief prosecutor, has been made. Niemann died suddenly under suspicious circumstances, which caused the police and Coroner Hoffman to begin an investigation, but the authorities are satisfied that Niemann died of natural causes.

Billik's daughter Edna, a nine-year-old girl of remarkable beauty and sweetness of face has made herself the chief adviser of her father, whose sentence of death has just been held up.

Billik will have been hanged yesterday. It was to have been the climax of one of the most amazing stories in the history of American crimes. It is a story filled with human heart interest from start to start. The newspapers here printed columns about it.

Billik stands convicted of the murder by slow arsenical poisoning of the 14-year-old daughter of the Vrazl family. It is charged he was in love with the mother of these six children. His beautiful little daughter visits him daily in his cell, brings flowers to him, reads the Bible with him and has gone upon the witness stand and testified for him.

COMPELLED TO OPEN SAFE AT PISTOL POINT

Adolph Sommer, proprietor of the Viscol Oil Company at First and Binney streets, East Cambridge, was awakened by a white man and a negro early to-day and, at the point of a revolver, directed to open his safe. Thoroughly frightened, Sommer complied. The two men then ransacked the safe and took all the money it contained. Harry Thaw.

REMOVE BIG GUN FROM FORT

After uprooting a tree and otherwise taxing the ingenuity of the government contractors who are forwarding the big forty-seven-ton seacoast mortar gun from Fort Heath to Wintarop to the freight yard in East Boston, the gun is to-day on the Winthrop narrow road in Beachmont.

This gun was taken from the carriage at Fort Heath last Monday, and from now sixty-ton gun that was landed at the fort last week was on its way in the open. The old gun blew off seven feet of its muzzle in a recent test, and it is now on its way to Watervliet, N. Y., for repairs.

The War Department and the Board of Selectmen of Wintarop and Revere are notifying the residents of the towns that during the target practice will be observed at Forts Banks and Heath, and on account of the heavy concussion which will result the residents are requested to "keep the windows of their homes open at the top and bottom during the firing."

BRITISH VETS DINE TO-NIGHT

Men who have shouldered arms under the Union Jack, either in the imperial or the colonial service, gather around the board at the New Marlboro Hotel, Washington street, to-night, at the annual banquet of the British Imperial and Colonial Veterans. A number of prominent citizens have been invited.

The British imperial and Colonial Veterans is one of Greater Boston's distinctive organizations. Composed of men born under Great Britain's flag and trained in her service, it yields to none, its members aver, in loyalty to the Stars and Stripes of its later allegiance.

Two hundred diners are expected to-night and the speechmaking will be of more than ordinary interest.

CLAIM $10,000 HERMIT LEFT

The investigation of the Watertown police has disclosed the fact that James O'Brien, who died in Worcester Insane Asylum, presumably a "hermit" in a penury and about $10,000 in bank deposits. Although he was supposed to have no near relatives, the police have discovered that he left a sister, Mrs. Margaret Ryan, at Harper's Ferry, Ia., a half brother, John Welch, at Lowell, and the sons of another half brother, Peter Welch, at Providence.

O'Brien boarded with Mrs. James Young in Taylor street, Watertown, and she always thought he had no money or friends. Two weeks ago he became insane, and after his death in the asylum the police found the bank books in his trunk.

STAGE SWEETHEARTS' WEDDING FOLLOWED BY STRENUOUS HONEYMOON

Thomas H. Ince and Elinor Kershaw, now Mrs. Ince.

Three weeks married, after a three-weeks' courtship, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ince are having a most strenuous honeymoon during their courtship they were together constantly, but since they were married Pate seems to have kept them apart, and the only way they have been able to see each other is by taking long railroad rides.

Mrs. Ince is the lisping girl in "A Night on a House Boat," which has been playing at Keith's. Mr. Ince is with William H. Thompson's company, which appears at Keith's next week, so that the wife is just one week ahead of her husband, and has been since their marriage.

Mrs. Ince is a petite blond, with a winning personality, who made her first appearance last spring in "Art and Vaudeville, and was later engaged to play the part she is in at the House Boat." She comes from St. Louis, her maiden name being Elinor Kershaw, and she has known Mr. Ince slightly for several years.

Three Weeks Together.

It happened that for three weeks, first at the Colonial Theatre in New York, then at the Orpheum in Brooklyn, and later the Gaiety in Harlem, Mr. Thompson's sketch and the House Boat problem were on the same bill. During all this time Mr. Ince made violent love to the blond lisping girl, and finally induced her to marry him.

It was expected that these two acts would be on the same bill in Providence, Boston, Worcester and Lawrence, but owing to circumstances they were shifted and Mr. Ince has been just one week behind the House Boat and the lisping girl ever since.

This week he is playing in Providence, and every evening after the performance takes a train for Boston. Next week Mrs. Ince, in the House Boat, will be in Worcester, and Mr. Ince has been looking up time-tables to find the best train for that city after the evening engagement.

A Strenuous Honeymoon.

"It seems so unfortunate," said Mrs. Ince, as she came off the House Boat at Keith's last evening, "because we had figured before our marriage that we would be playing in the same cities almost every week during the season.

"But since our marriage all our plans have been upset, and we certainly had thought that we would call a strenuous honeymoon. However, we have to expect that in the theatrical world, and we are trying to make the best of it.

"We expected to stay here two weeks, and that Mr. Ince would be on the same bill, but we are again doomed to disappointment, and he will have to come to Worcester to see me. From Worcester we go to Lawrence, but we have not been able to find out where Mr. Ince goes that week, but I am hoping it will be in some city near-by."

OIL SAVED SCHOONER FROM BEING WRECKED

PORTLAND, Nov. 8.—After a wonderful escape from being stranded on the rocks of Cape Elizabeth, the two-masted schooner Foster Rice, Captain Herbert Saunders of Annapolis, N. S., arrived in the harbor. At one time the schooner was about to be abandoned, but by means of oil thrown overboard, she was kept afloat. The schooner was bound from Philadelphia to St. John with coal.

RECORD SALES MARK AUTO SHOW'S CLOSE

BUSINESS AT EXHIBITION A SURPRISE TO MANAGEMENT.

By J. C. Kerrison.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—This, the last day of the motor show, opened with a rush and a bang, which promises the busiest day of the entire week. The visitors came to the show early in the morning, and immediately applied themselves to a close and final inspection of the long line of final models on exhibition by the different companies. Those shown by the different portion of the show have spent the greater portion of the week in wandering from one to their stands or endeavoring to make up their minds as to just which one they are to purchase, seem to have reached a conclusion at the factory to threaten if not to the dealers and salesmen in the building.

They seemingly went direct to the stand at which is shown the particular car that meets their individual requirements, and without much ado got down to doing business in a business manner. There was no question regarding anything other than early deliveries, and once this was determined upon no time was lost in coccluding negotiations.

To-day's Sales to Mark Record.

As things now look there is every reason to believe that this will be a record day in actual sales and when the show closes this evening everyone will be perfectly satisfied with the results of the week's work and that, too, despite the stringency in the money market.

The several manufacturers have placed agencies throughout the country and, in that respect, at least, are weeks ahead of all previous years, while the number of retail sales recorded at this show are greater than in any previous automobile show.

Among the Bostonians to arrive here recently were Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey W. Hadley, of Newburyport, and Mrs. J. S. Hathaway, of Boston, who came over the roads in a White steamer, having had a most enjoyable trip. Prominent among E. Whitten, of the Whitten-Gilmore Company, will start back for Boston, driving a Thomas Detroit, and should reach the Hub by nightfall.

The annual meeting of the American Automobile Association was held at the association's headquarters on Fifth avenue yesterday, when the old board of officers were re-elected. Delegates were present from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Has Over 20,000 Members.

The representatives of the several standing committees were read and showed the the organization to be in a most flourishing condition, both commercially and financially, and that a vast amount of valuable work has been performed during the past fiscal year. The secretary's report showed that the organization has something like 20,000 members, and that a balance of about $7,000 is in the treasury.

The touring committee reported a balance of something like $1,400 on hand, the first time the committee has ever reported a favorable balance, while the racing committee has something to say regarding future road races and especially as regards the question of the Long Island Motor Parkway. These officers were elected:

President William H. Hitchcock, of Belfast; vice president, Lewis R. Speare, Boston; second vice president, Asa Bird Gardiner, New York; third vice president, Ira M. Cobe, Cleveland; treasurer, George Farrington; secretary, Frederick P. Elliott; directors, Augustus Post, New York; Frederick K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Jefferson Demont Thompson, Amos G. Shattuck, Boston; Ira M. Mayer. The chairmen of the several standing committees will also be members of the board of directors under the new constitution and by-laws which will be in force as soon as printed and are Charles Thaddeus Terry, racing; Alfred R. Bowers, touring; Robert P. Hooper, good roads; Jefferson Demont Thompson, racing.

The resolutions of the Springfield convention on good roads and legislation requesting the American Automobile Association to take up with the proper authorities were presented, and as a result of such conference it may be definitely stated that some time next year and at a convenient place and perhaps in connection with the annual 1908 meeting of the Hartford Trophy, an open convention of the association for the discussion of all matters of interest to motorists will be held.

Some Directors Present.

The directors in attendance included the following:

Messrs. W. H. Chase, Leominster; S. L. Hayes, Springfield; John B. Cogslin, Worcester; Elliot Flint, Providence; W. F. Wood, president of Connecticut State Automobile Association; Oliver A. Quayle, president New York State Automobile Association; Jefferson Demont Thompson, New York; Frank E. Hower, Buffalo; A. G. Batcheller, New York; N. M. Pierce, Binghamton; C. H. Benedict, Schenectady; Giles H. Stilwell, Syracuse; C. D. Hakes, Rochester; New York State Automobile Association; A. R. Pardington, Brooklyn; H. S. Woodruff, Brooklyn; Joseph H. Wood, Newark; George A. Post, Paterson; H. Edwards, Jersey City; Robert P. Hooper, Philadelphia; Paul C. Wolff, secretary Pennsylvania State Federation; Wilbur F. White, Cleveland; N. H. Vanslick, Chicago, and Horace C. Chandlee, Washington.

The Costliest Car.

The most expensive car at the show, a 60-horsepower limousine, with a six-cylinder motor, was sold yesterday to H. H. Chapman of Glen Ridge, N. J. Mr. Ellis Gray Longe from long standard on the floor and Mr. Chapman will receive what is probably the most powerful as well as the most expensive car turned out in this country. The George N. Pierce Company was quite delighted with the sale.

Three types of chassis are shown by the Cadillac Company, whose Boston representative, Alvan T. Fuller, is doing no end of business. An unusual variety of body equipments, particularly in the case of the small car, serving to amplify the choice offered the purchaser to a degree which should brook no lack of satisfaction on that particular score.

The adoption of the A. L. A. M. rating formula has proved something of a revelation in the case of the four cylinder Cadillac cars, and developed the fact that the twenty horsepower nominal figure applied to the model C type, which was brought out for the first time last year, was far too low. The 1908 rating, therefore, has been raised to twenty-five horsepower, according to the system which is being used by quite a number of makers, and that without any change being required in the size or construction of the motor. As has been the case for several years, the famous single-cylinder car continues to hold an inconspicuous place in the Cadillac family. Its appearance this year in somewhat altered body suits out a little to its appearance.

Other Pope Cars.

In addition to the Pope-Toledo, already spoken of in the AMERICAN, the Dodge Motor Vehicle Company has a strong fair in the Pope-Hartford and Pope-Trinbune. In the Hartford exhibit is shown a Pope-Hartford, with complete equipment of all the lides of the usual accessories employed on a car of that grade, such as a speedometer, odometer, clock, searchlight, tire irons and shields, tin, mats and tire tools. This is the new Pope-Hartford touring car for 1908, which, with a few slight exceptions follows the lines of this year's Pope-Hartford that proved itself a favorite in no uncertain manner. There is a Pope-Hartford of the new model 28 also to be had in the show with the regular selling equipment, or, if desired, with a few extras, about and a limousine, the former shows a trifle in advance of the rest. The Pope-Trinbune line is shown in connection with the Pope-Hartford, and a 40-horsepower touring car and a twenty horsepower runabout on the same chassis being shown. The new model is shown with complete equipment, including top.

The Apperson, the Antocar, carried to Boston by Fred S. Smith, are both attracting considerable attention. The new jiak rabbit, although offered at a much lower price than at which any Apperson car has been heretofore sold, is in every respect including material, workmanship, style, reliability and low cost of maintenance up to the regular standard of Apperson quality. Its specifications are also patterned after those of the standard Apperson type as represented in the other cars of the line.

Despite the fact that the multi-cylindered car is now on the crest of the wave the Autocar designers have continued the popular two-cylinder runabout so long associated with the name. This is the only car of its kind in the entire show. Its construction has been standardized to such an extent that any description of its features would be but a repetition of what has gone before. The other member of the line is the 20 horsepower Autocar touring car, which is also fitted with runabout and limousine bodies.

The Electric Vehicle Company furnishes considerable interest in the matter of its pounder and sturdy over in the shape of its Columbia gasoline-electric 60 horsepower car, with its simple and extremely smooth-working transmission. This is controlled by its total lack of gears—or, for that matter, any form of mechanical connection.

COULTHURST STOCK RISING FOR MAYOR

Politicians Grow Uneasy Over the Candidacy of Independence Leaguer.

IS FOR GOOD GOVERNMENT

The mayoralty candidacy of John A. Coulthurst, Independence Leaguer, is the talk of Boston. Mr. Coulthurst it is said today, will very likely receive the endorsement of the Good Government Association.

The Boston vote for Hisgen, 18,093, and the Boston vote for District Attorney Moran, 46,327, have opened the eyes of the politicians to the great and growing strength of the Independence League in the city. Politicians of both parties fear the Coulthurst movement.

Secretary Billings of the Good Government Association said last night:

"I have nothing to say on the mayoralty situation at present, but I will say that the association has nothing against Mr. Coulthurst."

Mr. Coulthurst's friends declared today that the Good Government Association ought to find it easy to indorse a young man like John Coulthurst.

Mr. Coulthurst is not a professional politician. He is a clean, high-minded young man. His record is clean, and his principles are the principles of good government.

FITZGERALD GIVES UP PLAN TO GET LEAGUE

Scheme to "Capture" Nomination of New Party Falls Through.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic mayor of Boston, said today with characteristic naivete that he will not attempt to "capture" the Independence League nomination for mayor.

Mr. Fitzgerald admitted that some of his friends had suggested the possibility of such a coup. Mr. Fitzgerald would not name the advisory board.

Thanks to the ingenuity of the Political Trust—made up of the Republican and Democratic machines—it is almost as easy to drive the proverbial camel through the proverbial eye of the proverbial needle as to break away from either of the old parties and take part in the primaries of the new.

Treated Insolently.

Men who had been tied up with either of the old lines had to go before the Board of Election of the old organization a few months ago, feel a board made up of Democrats and Republicans that they must first take part in the primaries of the young Independence League, state their reasons, receive their addresses, name the party from which they were invoked, and stand under a conceivable amount of studied insolence and mock scorn.

The average man concluded that he would rather take part in Bolshiism. Vengeance is mine, the Charge of the Six Hundred was going to work in the morning.

It therefore happens that there are in Boston today 20,000 voters enrolled on the League primaries.

And yet 46,327 Bostonians voted for the Independence League candidate for Governor.

And yet, 46,327 Bostonians voted for the Independence League candidate for district attorney—and elected him.

Planned Coup.

The friends of Mayor Fitzgerald, Democrat, who suggest that he take the league nomination for mayor by force of arms, assert that he should delegate to the league primaries two or three hundred of the NEW voters, who glowingly elect by write in the name of John F. Fitzgerald under the Independence League designation and so nominate Mr. Fitzgerald.

It isn't likely that anything of the kind will be pulled off—for several reasons.

Mr. Fitzgerald says he isn't going to try it—but that is what Mr. Fitzgerald SAYS.

The fact is that young Democrats or young Republicans will be at the Independence League primaries next week, to help Mr. Fitzgerald would have to go through the formulals here described in order to get back where they belong. Many of them are likely to banker for Democratic preponderance.

The Independence League, however, bids welcome to every new voter in Boston, and also cordially invites all the old voters. Come on in.

DID NOT LEAVE WIFE PENNILESS

WORCESTER, Nov. 9.—L. A. Whitney, the well-to-do Ware farmer who was accused by his wife yesterday of deserting her and leaving her with only $1, denied to-day that he had done either.

Mr. Whitney, who left here to-day for the West to be a cowboy, as he expressed it, said before he took his train:

"I left my wife October 27 after she had been abusive and had made many accusations against me. I tried to reason with her, but could not. I decided to quit. When I left the house she said, 'I hope I shall never see your face again.' I gave her considerable cash, gave her titles to some work of land in Enfield, and signed over to her my rights in the $2,500 place where we lived."

BIRTH COMES AFTER DEATH

WEBSTER, Nov. 9.—A most unusual incident occurred here last night which has caused wonder among the medical men and the people of the town. Mrs. Anna Masslk, aged thirty years, died during the evening after an illness of several days of congestion of the lungs, and a few minutes after her death a baby boy was born.

When Mrs. Masslk's condition became serious her family physician was sent for to soothe, if possible, her dying moments, and pronounced her dead after being a short time at the bedside. As he was about to leave the cry of an infant attracted his attention, and it was found that an apparently healthy boy had been born. The physicians think that the child will live.

HANDSOME CANDIDATE HOST TO 5,000 CHILDREN

Theodore A. Glynn of Roxbury, who wants to be elected Alderman.

Watch the fight for the Board of Aldermen being made by Theodore A. Glynn of Roxbury, through which little more is found of value in a political battle will be omitted.

The popular young auburn-haired candidate is out to defeat Alderman "Jim" Cuneen. He declares that he will accomplish it, or give that fight-hitting cognac of his life.

Glynn is one of Roxbury's handsomest young men. He is widely known as "Teddy." He has a smile that is captivating and a handshake that impresses one with his sincerity.

Like the old-time Tammany leaders of New York, "Teddy" Glynn proposes to appeal to the children of that section of the city. Through their little ones he proposes to reach the hearts of the mothers and then just take chances on the votes.

The first initial move of this unique campaign is made this afternoon, when "Ted dy" acts as host to 5,000 children at the Alhambra Theatre, corner of Vine and Dudley streets. The festivities begin at 2 o'clock.

Glynn spent yesterday in distributing tickets to the school children of the Roxbury section. The little ones will troop into the main section of the building, while their mothers will have the balcony for their especial use.

LABOR NEWS

UNITED PRINTING TRADES LABOR UNION COUNCIL 96 BOSTON, MASS.

The Federation of State, City and Town Employes' Union is looking for a national charter, and Organizer W. F. O'Brien believes that it will be obtained. The following letter from President Gompers of the A. F. of L. to the Federation gives much hope, as the body believes that it has fulfilled practically all of the obligations set forth in President Gompers's letter:

"Your letter addressed to Secretary Morrison has been brought to my attention. In view of the fact that a conference was held in the city of Worcester, Mass., the organization locals affiliated with your federation voted to apply to the American Federation of Labor for a national charter, and you therefore wish to be furnished with the necessary information as to the action to be taken in applying for such a charter.

"In the organization of wage-earners under the banner of the American Federation of Labor has in view the purpose of securing the most possible federation among the workers now organized. It recognizes, however, the possibility and probability of many organizations which developed upon a national organization, and we would be unfaithful to our trust if we did not give our support and encouragement to the formation of a national body without any of the many local autonomy that conditions warranted such a course.

Needs Firm Foundation.

"The workers who appreciate the benefit of organization are naturally enthusiastic over the formation of a national union of their trade, realizing as they do the advantages which have been gained to the worker by a national organization in many trades. You can appreciate, however, the fact that it is essential that a national union must be formed upon a firm foundation if it is to be of any benefit to the workers and the trade.

"The local unions now existing in the trade must first themselves be properly built up and strengthened in order that they could form a substantial basis for the national body. By this you should not infer that the conditions among the workers of any trade must be perfect before a national union could be formed, for on the contrary, the institution of a national organization is intended to promote the greater advancement of the workers of the trade; but it is necessary, in order to achieve the best success, that a good start should have been made by the local unions so that when the national is finally established it will be able to shoulder the burden of the work which the combined interests will involve and then steadily forge ahead. If, however, unions are unable to give the proper support and assistance to the national, it would be very much handicapped, so that as a result the members have confidence in the organization, thus losing it for that for which they are themselves responsible.

Indicates Proper Course.

"The best course to take, where the formation of a national union has been decided upon, is to call a convention of all the local unions of the trade, to be held in the same city and at the same time when the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor is held, so that in the organization and formation of the national the delegates thereto may have the benefit and assistance of the counsel of the most experienced men in the labor movement of the cities who are in attendance at the annual convention of the A. F. of L.

"Fraternally yours,

"SAMUEL GOMPERS."

LABOR NOTES.

Michael F. O'Brien, president of the Federal Labor Union, State, City and Town Employes' Unions, will go to Norfolk, Va., to-day and remain from the American Federation of Labor convention a national charter for the organization which he represents.

The Boston branch of the American Type Founders Company is to abandon its printing annex and the plant is to be transferred to Jersey City.

An order passed at the last meeting of the Boston C. L. U. and referred to the Building Trades Section of the C. L. U. was taken up last night by the section and Brother M. Huddell, ex-president of the Boston C. L. U. and delegate to the A. F. of L. convention in Norfolk, was instructed to work in the matter of jurisdiction, for the U. A. of Plumbers against the N. A. of Steamfitters. This matter centres on the point of jurisdiction over hot water pipes more especially.

A committee from the Norwood Brick blockers, consisting of Miss E. L. Morphy, chairman of the executive committee, and Miss F. Murray, president of Norwood Local No. 176, spoke before the trades section. The section voted to give them $20.

The Building Trades Section referred the matter of the Charlestown armory to the board of governors. It is understood that the armory is being constructed under non-union conditions and, in some cases, by laborers who are not citizens.

The board of governors of the Building Trades Section will take action on the Franklin Union building to-day. It is stated that carpenters, plumbers and an electrician, all belonging to unions affiliated with the section, are at work on the building. The plumbers, however, deny that any of their men are on the job.

The Building Trades Council received and accepted a report that the men employed by the Atlas Construction Company on Deer Island, including carpenters, teamsters and engineers, were union men.

The United Garment Workers of America hold an open mass meeting in Wells Memorial to-morrow. All branches of the trade, including ready-made and custom coat, pant and vest makers, are invited to be present at 2 p. m.

FAILS TO BRING ORIGINAL COPY

LOWELL, Nov. 9.—Superintendent of Police Moffatt was the only witness to-day at the hearing of a law and order league charges against Police Commissioners Jennings and Mealey. At previous hearings Moffatt testified he had received a final copy of the order issued by Mayor Casey regarding police department changes, but to-day he stated he had only a typewritten copy. He said the police commissioners had ordered him to enforce all laws and not only the excise laws. The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

ST. BRENDAN CHORAL SOCIETY ORGANIZES

The St. Brendan Choral Society met at Brigham's Hotel last evening and organized for the season. After supper a handsome music cabinet was presented to Director Charles F. Forrester, who is doing much in the interest of Irish music in Boston. The choir is composed of members of the Knights and Ladies of St. Brendan and was the first Irish choral society to be established in Boston.

LEAGUE HAS CLEAN LEAD OF 5,000 VOTES

The Independence League in Massachusetts led the Democratic party in Tuesday's State election by approximately 5,000 votes.

According to the general interpretation of the Statutes, the Independence League is now one of the "TWO LEADING POLITICAL PARTIES IN THE STATE ELECTION," and as such is entitled to half of the election officers.

Henry M. Whitney, as the "Democratic" candidate on the ballot, polled not more than 71,000 votes.

Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence Leaguer, got 75,026 votes.

Clean Total of Over 75,000.

Mr. Whitney, in addition to his Democratic nomination, took out two sets of nomination papers. He was on the ballot as "Independent Citizens" and "Democratic Citizens."

These other designations, together with such votes as are credited to him as plain "Whitney," the Brookline man polled 12,000 or 13,000 votes. If the voter hopped to mark Whitney the Democrat, Whitney the Independent Citizen and Whitney the Democratic Citizen—or any two of them—the vote was credited to "Whitney, No Designation."

Every one of Hisgen's 75,000 votes was an Independence League vote. The Independence League, at the State election, was, therefore, one of the "two leading political parties."

The BOSTON AMERICAN has already presented the official figures from twenty-seven cities and towns.

These twenty-seven cities and towns gave Whitney, Democrat, 25,143 votes and Hisgen, Independence Leaguer, 27,932 votes.

To-day the BOSTON AMERICAN presents the figures from seventy-four other cities and towns. These are mostly the smaller communities. A selected group of them would show Hisgen in the lead. The AMERICAN prefers to present them JUST AS THEY ARE and for what they are worth.

Added to the figures already presented, and now accounting for quite one-half of the State vote on Tuesday, they show the Independence League in second place, and one of the "two leading political parties."

The figures hereinbefore printed included:

These cities, and others like them, gave Hisgen and the Independence League their lead over Whitney and the Democratic party. That that lead holds substantially good over the State is indicated by these further returns, largely from the smaller communities and Western Massachusetts:

Anybody who can prove that the 13,000 gentlemen who voted for Whitney under his various nomination parties meant to vote for Whitney, Democrat, and really did so, will be suitably rewarded by applying at Democratic headquarters. But he must first find the place. One applicant is already with an explanation that the men who wouldn't vote for Whitney the Democrat, but who voted for him under his side lines, were "factional" Democrats.

POINT TO HISGEN VOTE AS WARNING TO POLITICIANS

SURPRISE AT BIG LEAGUE VOTE TOLD IN EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The wonderful showing made by Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence League candidate for Governor, is causing editorial comment all over New England.

The AMERICAN to-day reprints several of these editorials, as follows:

League Here to Stay.

Portland Express.

The prominence of the figures given to the candidate of the Independence League is the most suggestive feature of the State election there. It shows that party lines are disintegrating, and that men are ready to hold with "the hoops of steel" which most bind them to their party organizations. The Massachusetts election demonstrates some thing anything else but the Independence League and the ideas for which Mr. William R. Hearst stands have not been eliminated from the political situation. The showing of the candidate of the Democratic party in New England will be watched to have its effects in the other New England States, and politicians of both parties who have their weather eye upon the followers of the idea for which the League stands.

Cannot Dictate to People.

Concord N. H. Patriot.

Two years ago no Independence League in Massachusetts. Tuesday Hisgen, the Independence Leaguer, is probable that the candidate for Governor, received practically the same vote as the nominee of the party five years ago carried the State by nearly 100,000 majority. Then Moran, nominated by the Independence League, although the Democratic party democratically combined against him, beats them all by over 12,000 votes. Surely the League has been and the time is now, when a few men may nominate, but the time is not here and for many a few men may tell the many whom they shall elect.

Remarkable Showing at Polls.

Boston Post.

The Democratic campaign was wrecked before it was started by the rank and discreditable proceedings at Springfield which disheartened and disgusted the masses of the party. These circumstances gave to Mr. Hisgen, as nominee of the Independence League, a new and untried political party, his great opportunity. Personally a strong nomination, and surrounded by a platform appealing forcibly to the radical elements of the Democratic party, he made a remarkable showing at the polls."

Now Established Party.

Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

The Independence League is now an established party in Massachusetts. His gov's vote was nothing less than phenomenal.

Many Voters Dissatisfied.

Berkshire County Eagle.

The feature of the day was the big vote given Hisgen, the Independence League candidate. Evidently a lot of dissatisfied voters in both the old parties voted for him.

Great Day for League

Newburyport News.

Yesterday was a great day for the Independence League candidate. It is quite evident that Henry M. Whitney is eliminated as a political factor in Massachusetts.

League Program Appeals.

Fall River Herald.

The surprise next to that in the size of the Republican plurality was the vote piled up by Candidate Hisgen of the Independence Leaguers. It is probable that the differences in the Democratic ranks helped to swell the total, but it is once more made evident that there are a good many voters here to have to do with the program offered by the Independence League apparently with force enough to induce them to give it their support.

Unexpectedly Strong.

Rutland (Vt.) News.

The Independence League vote was unexpectedly strong in Massachusetts.

Hisgen Vote Remarkable.

Haverhill Gazette.

The vote of Thomas Hisgen, the Independence League oil man, is certainly the most remarkable. The interpretation is one of the important elements of the situation. That it is a very formidable, not only for the strength it developed in the cities where industrial organization might account for it, but in the towns, as well.

Got Many Republicans' Vote.

Springfield Republican.

It is impossible to make a close analysis of such a vote as that which Mr. Hisgen received. In this part of the state, at least, he received votes from all sorts of people, including a good many Republicans. He made a rallying point for the dissatisfied in all the political camps, and it is manifest, of course, that the free discussion by those who had supported Bartlett before the Democratic State convention got into its tangle.

BALLOONISTS OFF ON TRIP THROUGH AIR

NORTH ADAMS, Nov. 9.—At 12.35 the balloon was over Readsboro, Vt., sailing at a height of 800 feet in a northeasterly direction. It was apparently under full control.

NORTH ADAMS, Nov. 9.—Under weather conditions weirdly perfect, the balloon of Lee Stevens, accompanied by Frederick H. White, ascended in Stevens's ballroom, "Stevens No. 2," at 12.10 to-day. Mr. White will photograph all the country passed over and Mr. Stevens will use them in moving picture exhibitions.

When the big balloon, with its 35,000 cubic feet of gas, was freed from its instruments at 12.10 noon, it rose to a height of 1,000 feet and immediately sailed in an easterly direction. At 12.25 it was seen over the Hoosac Mountains near Munroe Bridge. Mr. Stevens planned to go into New York State, but it is believed that the balloon, owing to the direction of the wind, will stay in the northwestern part of Massachusetts or Vermont.

It is planned to remain in the air for three hours, during which time Photographer White will take pictures of the surrounding country.

RECOVER BODY OF DROWNED FISHERMAN

The body of John Hughes for which the police of the Waltham's have been dredging since daylight, was recovered to-day at 2 o'clock in the Charles river. Hughes was one of the crew of the sailing schooner Quonnapowitt, which capsized in the river the schooner last night, lost his hold and fell into the water. Before assistance arrived, he had disappeared. He was forty years old and single.

BRAKEMAN BEHEADED

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Laurence V. Bowers, a brakeman for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was decapitated by a train in the company's yards at the foot of Willis avenue early to-day.

SLIGHT LOSSES, STAGNATION AS MARKET CLOSES

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—There was almost a complete stagnation of business on the stock exchange to-day. Trading fell to an extremely low level, and price movements were quite as insignificant as the volume of business done. As compared with, there was a short-lived selling movement, which sent the majority of the list for fractional losses, which losses extending to ¾ were recorded in Atchison and 2¼ in Canadian Pacific.

Bonds were also slightly dull and the market closed dull and steady with irregular net changes. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds generally lower.

The bank statement shows a deficit by the banks of $51,924,625 against a deficit last year of $1,514,125, and two years ago of $2,426,800.

London cables say the Bank of England has received $368,000 more than $2,000,000, in American eagles and $121,000 in gold in total of about $3,225,000, were taken from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to the United States.

The total known gold engagements passed the $50,000,000 mark to-day. Lazard Freres announced that they had engaged $3,000,000 additional $1,000,000 in gold in Europe.

League Leaders Not Candidates for Office, Declares Hon. W. N. Osgood

Hon. William N. Osgood of the Independence League leaders makes this statement to-day:

"I desire to deny the statement which appeared in a Friday morning paper that, as a member of the Independence League, I am a candidate for political office. No one was authorized to make such a statement.

"It is true that I am very much interested in organizing the voters into a permanent organization for real and not pretended popular government.

"I am not a candidate for any political office. I would much prefer to be devoting my time and energies to assisting in effectively organizing the people, as above intimated, to being a candidate for or to being elected to any office. Outside of my devotion to my profession, I do not wish to conceal my devotion to the principles of the Independence League, which are bound to grow if we but remain faithful to the cause. I may also add I know that none of those who are actively interested in the League are pronounced candidates for office."

MAYOR FITZGERALD'S TWO OPINIONS OF MORAN

Which Is the Mayor's Real Opinion?

BEFORE ELECTION

From the Republic of November 2.

Mr. Moran is using the office of District Attorney as it it were his private property, degrading it to a degree that has never occurred in the history of this county.

Men with criminal records of years' standing have escaped and those prosecuted crimes of an atrocious character are not being punished.

The laws of the Commonwealth are being set aside which in a civilized community ought not to be heard of in a civilized community.

Mr. Moran, with the boldness, not to say brazenness, which has characterized him ever since he came into office, appeals to the people to endorse him because of his self-proclaimed honesty, public virtue and freedom from the corrupt taint of political associations.

Yet the record which he is making at Pemberton square every day reveals a lower intimacy with corrupt politicians than has characterized the administration of any office within the gift of the state county within our recollection.

We think that the light which he is making, with its presence of virtue before the public, will be rolled up Tuesday next and that six months after Mr. Dennison is inducted into office the people will wonder why they stood for Moran for two years.

AFTER ELECTION

From the Republic of November 9.

The Mayor is making no apology for his action in the county fights. If he had shaped his course on practical politician, regardless of his obligations, he would have received a vote THIS MAN HIS OWN WAY EAST IN THE MAYOR'S CHAIR.

The Mayor was urged to do this by many who had promised Mr. Dennison two years ago, however, to support him. He had promised that the honorable opportunity opened to relieve himself from this obligation.

Three years ago Boston had the worst record in the state for the number failing to court convictions. This was because prosecutions were not being placed upon application in any other section of the country were put in jail in Massachusetts.

The young men and boys in all sections of the city, who had come to know Mr. Moran's humanity through the release of their parents and friends, were shocked that this man's record should receive a bigger majority than he received two years ago.

May Irwin's Final Recipe for Happiness Is Human Kindness

By May Irwin

IF you follow the Golden Rule I believe you will attain happiness. Without kindness life would not be worth living. Kindness is the spring from which flow all the rivers of charity.

A pleasant word or a pleasant look is kindness.

Being kind is not merely being generous or being indulgent. Kindness is a gentle consideration for other persons. To save another person trouble, to save another inconvenience, to save another worry and to save another discomfort and displeasure—that is being kind.

After all, conversation and kindness, which I have pointed out as the second most powerful contributors to happiness, bring us back to conscience, which I told you at the beginning of these articles was the only happiness.

Life Rules in Poem

Some years ago I ran across a vagrant bit of poetry by an anonymous writer and I am going to quote it to you. The stanza ran this way:

Keep the conscience sensitive,
No onward token wear;
And so where power conflicteth thee,
Perfection lies in this.

The author of these lines had the secret of happiness. Undoubtedly if he could have substituted the word and preserved the meter he would have said happiness, instead of perfection, lies in this.

Ah! Just now imaginary sounds of laughter disturb me at my desk. I can hear a lot of people saying in high glee: "Well, what do you think of that? Just imagine that Mr. May Irwin talking about spiritual things and the peace of conscience."

I think I shall have to answer that by remarking that I am plump—pull it stout if you want to—just because I am happy, and I am happy because I can take my conscience out and handle it and truthfully say that I have found no rough edges resulting from intentional evil deeds.

Fun and Seriousness

Because one is professionally funny it is a great mistake to believe that one cannot be serious. The funniest man I ever knew was the most serious, and he was always bemoaning the fact that he was not looked at for the most uncomical performance of going to church.

I have reference to "Jimmie" Lewis, that inimitable actor who for many years graced the company which played in Daly's Theatre. Jimmie Lewis was a happy man because he was a good man, of big heart, warm impulses, and gentle conscience. He used to like to attend services at the Little Church Around the Corner.

On Sunday mornings when he would walk down Twenty-ninth street, New York, and cross Fifth avenue, and the passersby would recognize him, they would begin to smile and by the time he entered through the big iron gates of the church yard they would chuckle. They would not fancy Lewis, the comedian, being serious, even on such an errand as churching one of the most serious days of the week. The thought here seems to be that Lewis, when smiled at the passing sight of my dear old friend could not have been happy.

Tap, Tap, Go Anvils

I trust that you will not think that I am getting away from my topic of happiness with the introduction of the Lewis narrative. I recall it simply to point out that the "funniest" of us can at times be serious.

Again I hear the silvery ripples of laughter coming from the right corner. As I can hear one of them say: "Well, I guess that fat May Irwin comes pretty nearly thinking she is perfect."

Now, my friends, I don't want you to think that I believe any such a thing. To tell you the honest truth, with all of my happiness, I will admit that it is a downright pleasure to get angry. If I could not say this truthfully I would not be human.

I have been angry with as much regularity as the next one. I have written here on earth, but I'll tell you earnestly that after the first waves have passed over me, I try to put aside the emotion. Anger makes wrinkles, and wrinkles are undermining to all of us, especially we who are actresses.

Now, as I finish this series of articles I have a thought that I have very probably disappointed a good many AMERICAN readers. They have looked for me, a great humorist, I dare say, to be funny.

I'm sorry if I have disappointed any one, but it is impossible to joke about happiness. It is impossible to take liberties with happiness. Happiness itself contains all the fun in the world. I, nor any other stage entertainer, is able to add to happiness or the subject of happiness any element of fun or have a ridiculous idea.

Mighty Serious Business

However, if I have been too prosy in style and too sternly serious to be entertaining, I shall feel as if I owe you an apology.

Still, this business of happiness is the most serious thing in all the world. It is all there is in living. And it is the simplest thing in the world to find.

Happiness is work. Remember that! Happiness is health of mind and of body. The clear conscience is the first requisite for healthiness of mind. It greatly aids the health of body, too.

Be a worker! Be on the level with yourself and everybody else in the world. Try to help all other workers and try to make everybody else on the level. Then you are sure to be happy.

COSTS $12,000 A YEAR TO CLOTHE A SOCIETY MAN

Men of Fashion Far More Particular About Their Clothes Than Is the Most Finicky Woman

BY FRANCES SAVAGE

IT seems that interest men interest themselves in anything so essentially feminine as fashion in clothes, but such is the case. The woman never captivated, no matter how particular about her gowns, that could equal the man who makes a study of his wearing apparel. And if he is one of New York's "400" his clothes for the year will cost him $12,000.

From the top of his tow to the crown of his head everything must harmonize. If dressed in brown, that means that hat, suit, gloves, tie and shoes must all be in the various shades of brown from the palest golden to deep brown. Again he may have on contrasting colors, instead of being a monochromic study. In any event, the effect must be harmonious. To attain this perfection in dress requires much study and an eye for color.

The $12,000 that the average society man of the "400" pays for his season's wardrobe will include what from the point of taste will wear, extremely few, and not a great expense. He may spend twice $12,000 if he cares to, but if he is conservative and modest in his tastes, will hardly go beyond the $12,000 mark.

Things He Must Have

Here are some of the things the ordinary citizen gets along without that the man in the "400" must have, and that help make his wardrobe expensive:

12 sets silk underwear,
12 walking sticks,
25 fancy waistcoats,
3 dinner suits,
2 evening suits,
2 golf suits,
3 riding suits,
3 motoring suits,
10 top coats.

None of the articles mentioned is superfluous. This man of so-called high society must be suitably dressed wherever he appears, and he must go, and do, wherever and whatever it is fashionable to go, or do. If he is a yachtsman, he must add three or four yachting outfits, from shoes to cap, at a cost of about $125 an outfit. In his wardrobe will be at least six business suits. Many men will have eight or ten, but six are generally considered sufficient for a year. These cost from $60 to $120 a suit.

About His Clothes

Cutaways are a necessary evil in a man's wardrobe. I do not believe any man wears a cutaway from choice, or because he likes one. Borrowing, but no outfit is complete without the conventional cutaway. It will have not less than four of these suits, and they will cost from $75 to $125 apiece. The frock coat is about the most becoming a tall man can wear. But all men like them, whether big or little, and at least two frock suits will be found in the ward-robe of the well dressed man of the "400." These will cost him from $80 to $150 a suit.

Dinner clothes are an absolute necessity, also very fashionable and very costly.

No matter how ugly a man may be, dress him in a dinner suit and he will be positively handsome. Two or three of these suits will be found in the collection, belong to every well-dressed man.

The conventional "clam-hammer" evening wear dress is never very graceful, but is the immutable thing. No man can quite forget that he is lord of creation when he is arrayed in one of these evening dress suits. These will cost from $150 a suit, and a man cannot do with less than two of the evening suits.

Waistcoats at $125

Waistcoats are a hobby with most dressy men, and are often elaborate affairs, many of them being made of brocaded satins in the palest colors for evening wear. There cannot be too many of these, and they will cost anywhere from $75 to $25 apiece, and with this article, and in a few weeks the bottle under Archie's machine were again disappearing as rapidly as ever and his task was hardly beyond him.

have more than one or two of these suits, at about $50 a suit.

Riding suits are also a necessity for the well dressed man of the "400." He will have not less than three of these, costing him from $60 to $125 a suit, if he is economical.

Motoring outfits are essential at the day and age. A man may have any number of these, according to his interest in the sport, but he cannot get on without three of these outfits at least, costing about $100 each. If he is a motor enthusiast, he will spend easily $1,000 in a season on motoring clothes alone.

He must have top coats for all occasions (we will suffice—at $75 to $150 each.

Handkerchiefs are a hobby with many well dressed men, and 100 handkerchiefs are considered a small quantity. These may cost as little as one dollar apiece, and as much as five.

Cravats are another hobby of the up-to-date dresser. A man will search high and low to get something unique and becoming in the way of a tie, and woe to the man who selects his neckwear carelessly, or allows his fancy for bright colors to betray him. A tie will either make or ruin a man's costume; so the study of cravats is no idle matter. The man must avoid the many pitfalls spread for him by the wily haberdasher seeking to introduce a new fad. One hundred ties at least are required for a season's wear, and will cost from $2 to $10 a tie. Some of them are tailored as high as $25, but not more than 10 or 25 will be found for one season.

His gloves are unlimited and will cost from $2.50 to $10 a pair.

Hosiery is also lead to estimate, as a man may have four dozen pairs in his wardrobe at one time, and will have eight pairs of half-hose. In any event they will be of silk, and cost from $2.50 a pair up to $5 or more.

Then comes the silk underwear, and the society man will have at least twelve sets, in many different colors, and ranging in price from $25 to $50 a set.

Twelve Pairs of Shoes

No man of the "400" has less than a dozen pairs of shoes, and sometimes many more than that, in a season. They are all made to order and cost him from $10 to $25 a pair.

His hats are his vanity and must be well chosen as to style, fit, color and becomingness. Fifteen hats will suffice for the society man, and he will pay from $5 to $15 apiece for them.

There must be a light coat in his wardrobe, and it will cost from $15 to $20.

Walking sticks are among the few ornaments allowed a man. No stick takes the place of the gold bag, vanity box, etc., of the woman of fashion. A man will generally buy ten or twelve new ones in a year, at from $3 up to $50, possibly more.

The well-dressed man is debarred from wearing jewelry, except studs and cuff buttons, and he often costs $250 a year. He will have a variety of sleeve and cuff buttons, and will probably spend $400 or $500 a season for them. As he may have no few jewels, he changes them often.

When it comes to scarfpins, he is a fancy to run riot, but never at any time must he let himself be led into buying many that are costly, although there are not necessarily a large item in a man's personal budget; many a man spends from $2,000 to $3,000 a year on scarfpins.

Of rings he must be very sparing, and this is sometimes a real deprivation, for once men love jewelry quite as well as a woman.

Linen Knows No Limit

Last, but by no means least, comes a man's linen, which is his biggest item, for upon his linen depends the success of his entire outfit. His shirts must be of the finest, or he is insipid. To get them just right is an art. Here a man's love of color may be gratified. He may have pink shirts, blue shirts, black and white shirts, tan, lavender, and even green shirts. All of these are embroidered with just the right touch, and the fit is particular about the fit of these garments as a society woman is about her corsets.

It is impossible to estimate a man's linen bill. It is never outlined, for scarcely a day that the society man is in town "goes" does not purchase some bit of linen.

So it is easy to see that he must be very careful in buying if he is economize to stay inside of $12,000 a year.

EMBROIDERED TOWELS

HUCKABACK toweling is used now for working Biedermeier designs. The cross stitch is used instead of the satin stitch, and the effect of doing the work is done by overlapping each square with colored floss. Toweling when so worked is nice for stand covers, dresses, scarfs and cushions.

REVIVE AMMONIA VICTIM

WHEN a person is overcome by ammonia fumes a good stiff drink of vinegar will help to counteract the action of the ammonia, revive the unconscious, and in many cases save life.

The Business Girl Is About the Best Product of America

By Beatrice Fairfax

MOST of those who do not come in actual contact with the business girl have the vaguest idea of what she is really like.

In the first place, they look on her as thoroughly undomesticated and devoid of all womanly accomplishments.

In this they make a great mistake, for there is no reason in the world why the business girl should not be a very capable housekeeper.

The girl who has the brains to be ideally efficient in business affairs has the brains to be equally intelligent in household affairs.

The business girl is not always driven to earn her own living through necessity. It frequently happens that she is one of a large family of girls and that her common sense tells her that she is much better off earning her living than idling away her time at home.

If a girl is not married at twenty-five she is usually tired of dances and the tiresome round of society affairs and is very glad to get into some congenial line of work.

The pride of being independent is very sweet, and, though a girl may be independent as far as money matters go, it does not follow that she loses her feminine graces and charms.

She can be out in the world, a wage earner, and still be as sweet and womanly as though she had never left the home circle.

The girl who is inclined to be bold and fast is in just as much danger of becoming so if she stays at home as when she is engaged in business. In fact, there is even more chance of her getting into those bad habits, as she has more time to get into mischief.

Now to her mind the average business girl is about the finest product of this country. She is independent, capable, self-respecting, womanly girl, and the men of the country should be proud of her. She goes home her business in a modest, sensible way, asking nothing but just consideration of her services and equal treatment from those with whom she comes in daily contact.

She is usually a good daughter, and, owing to her generous salary, many little extra comforts creep into the home.

If any young man reads these words let him remember that a good daughter makes a good wife.

Learns Value of Money

THROUGH earning her own living she gains a practical knowledge of the value of money. She appreciates that it is hard work, and after marriage she is careful not to squander her husband's earnings.

She may not know all there is to know about housekeeping, but she can learn, and it is quite true that the girl who understands stenography and double entry can learn to make a good wife. Remember that, young man, and don't despair if your sweetheart confesses that she can't cook.

I'm not for a moment think that I am telling the young men of the land that I am merely telling some facts about the business girl.

The girl whose plain duty it is to stay at home and help her mother is carving her living just as much as the one who goes to business every day. Keep that in mind, little stay-at-home sister, and don't be blue because you are not paid a salary every week. As long as your mother needs you, you are doing the very best kind of work in helping to lift the burden from her overweighted shoulders.

To the Business Girl

YOU deserve an article all to yourselves and shall have it, but this article is for your business sister.

Sometimes she is badly misjudged, and I want people to know her as she really is, fine and capable and sweet.

And now for a word to the business girl herself.

Dear girls, as long as you hold your own self-respect and conduct yourselves in a modest, ladylike manner, you will never have to complain of the treatment you receive from others.

Bear in mind that office hours are for work and not for play. Love affairs have no place in the business world.

Your employer pays you to work for him, not to entertain the office clerks and men customers who come in.

You are an important part of the great, busy working world. See that you bear your part honorably and capably.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

BLACKHEADS AND TAN

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Please tell me of something to displace or remove tiny sores or black heads on my face; also, how to get rid of tan. EARL.

PICK the blackheads with a needle which has been dipped into peroxide and press out the secretion by the use of a comedone. Do this after first opening the pores as much as possible by placing hot towels over the face. Follow this treatment with peroxide next and then apply a soothing cold cream.

Remove the tan by using a lotion made of one part lemon juice, two parts rose water and one part glycerine. Apply with a soft cloth after washing the hands, and while they are yet damp from the effect of the water. Every night anoint the face with this lotion and cold cream, pushing it well under the loose cuticle and wear loose gloves at night. Now that summer is here you will have to go to a careful manicurist and have them trained. Do this once a week for two or three weeks, in the meantime practicing the treatment suggested, and you ought to have no further trouble with them. Always be careful not to pull out the hangnails, but cut off what comes without any effort and the cream will soon soften them up so that they lie flat. A. B. M.

KEEP the cuticle around the nails in good condition by carefully pushing it back with a wood stick after washing the hands, and while they are yet soft from the effect of the water. Every night anoint the base of the nails with cold cream, pushing it well under the loose cuticle and wear loose gloves at night. Now that summer is here you will have to go to a careful manicurist and have them trained. Do this once a week for two or three weeks, in the meantime practicing the treatment suggested, and you ought to have no further trouble with them. Always be careful not to pull out the hangnails, but cut off what comes without any

A NERVE TROUBLE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me of something that will keep the blood from rushing to my head? All the blood in my body seems to rush to my face whenever I get unduly warm or excited. I am ashamed to be out in company on this account. Also please tell me what to do to make my itch go away. ANXIOUS.

YOUR trouble is evidently of the nerves, as both the flushing and the itching of the face will show. The latter, of course, might be caused by some local irritant, but as the trouble has existed so long in the stomach, but being associated with the flushing, or lack of self-control, it is most likely caused by the same disturbance. You should consult a physician for the weakness.

BLEACH DARK SKIN

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me of some good bleach to use to bring out what I used to suffer with a good many pimples and now I get rid of them, but my face is very dark. As I am only eighteen I would like to have a nice light complexion. DARK PANSY.

LEMON juice is an excellent bleacher as is also peroxide of hydrogen. Put a tablespoonful of grated horseradish in a bottle and put over it a cup of milk; let stand all night and strain. The liquid is the bleacher. Two of these will do good unless you persevere in their use.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

SHOULD BE CHAPERONED

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a young girl of eighteen or a young man of twenty to be chaperoned, after the theatre, to a fashionable restaurant which serves liquors? "A" says it shows the girl is properly chaperoned, as such pleasures should be indulged in by no girl of would be indulged in by no girl of good breeding. "A" argues such a idea is old-fashioned and ridiculous, as a girl of that age is well able to decide for herself in such a matter of personal opinion.

NO girl of twenty should go unchaperoned to supper at that late hour. In many countries girls are not allowed to go to the theatre unchaperoned. In this country, however, girls are allowed many privileges. But no girl whose mother looked after her well would be allowed to go to supper after the theatre unless she had a chaperon with her. "B" may regard this as an "antiquated" idea, but it is one which conforms with good breeding and the proper upbringing of young girls.

ARE NOT GENTLEMEN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are three young girls who always go together and we are quite often in the presence of some young boys. These boys are gentlemen and behave as such in every way save one. They have got a bad habit of making vulgar remarks and saying things which ought not be said in the presence of ladies. We hate to speak to the boys on this subject, for we are quiet, modest girls and we feel greatly embarrassed. Now if we were to boys say anything out of the way, we girls would have reason to feel embarrassed by it. We would not like to break friendship with the boys, for we love to talk, for they are not bad boys by any means, but we can't really understand them.

S. E. S. R.

MY dears, they cannot be nice boys nor gentlemen in any sense of the word, or they would not talk in a way to embarrass you. If I were you I would have nothing more to do with them. Of course, they think you do not object to their manner of talking, and as long as you do not, they will keep it up.

WEALTHY, SHE LAUGHS AT LAW; WEDS YOUTH

Newburyport Woman, 55, Bride of Fruit Dealer 20 Years Her Junior.

FAMILY SOUGHT COURTS

Special to the Boston American.

NEWBURYPORT, Nov. 9.—Love laughed at law proceedings in the romance of Miss Helen S. Raymond, a wealthy Newburyport woman, and William Demorris, a handsome young Greek fruit merchant of this city, and they were married in Providence on Monday last and are now back home preparing for a trip to Europe.

There was a sensation in this staid old city in August last when it was announced that Miss Raymond, who is about fifty-five years old and has property estimated at $200,000 in value, had betrothed herself to Demorris, who is about twenty-five and conducts two fruits stores here with brothers as partners.

Comes of Noted Family.

Gossips said that Miss Raymond, who is petite in figure, fell in love with the tall, stalwart young Greek while buying fruit at his store. He has black hair, blue eyes and a blonde mustache. He comes of a prominent family in Athens. One uncle is a professor in the Athens University and an author of works on the Romaic law, another is president of the International Mixed Court in Cairo, Egypt, and a third is president of an Athens bank, and a fourth is a cavalry colonel in the Greek army. The bridegroom's father is now a resident of Newburyport. He was a prominent leather merchant in Greece and is said to have amassed such wealth during the Turkish war that he decided to come to America.

Miss Raymond is a member of an old Essex County family, and while not active in society, enjoyed social prestige because of her wealth and connections.

Petitioned for Injunction.

She lived in a stately brick homestead on State street with her aunt and guardian, Miss Hannah D. Osgood. It was surmised that Miss Raymond's family did not entirely approve of her marrying the young Greek merchant, for after the engagement became the subject of talk Miss Osgood, as guardian, petitioned the Superior Court for an injunction restraining Miss Osgood from transferring her property.

But official records at Salem show that Mrs. Demorris, the bride, recently transferred her dwelling here to Miss Osgood.

It is understood that Mr. Demorris intends to retire from business in Newburyport and that after a wedding journey in Europe he and his wife will return to this country and settle somewhere in the West or South.

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the leader of the Christian Science denomination, has been awarded a diploma of honor by the International Exposition of Book and Paper Industries recently held in Paris.

A diploma of honor was awarded Mrs. Eddy as the founder of Christian Science.

The exhibit spoken of in Dr. Tolman's letter was made up largely of Mrs. Eddy's writings.

KING EDWARD GIVEN BIG GEM ON BIRTHDAY

LONDON, Nov. 9.—This is King Edward's birthday anniversary, and he received a gift with which he hasn't the remotest idea what to do—the great Cullinan diamond.

The present was made by the Transvaal government, and if ever there was a white elephant it is that particular gem. It weighs 1.37 pounds and is valued at $2,500,000.

It can't be placed in the crown, because it is so big that it would make the emblem of royalty unwearable, and Alexandra can't wear it in her necklace or tiara for the same reason. To cut it into lesser stones would take away a great part of its value.

The whole royal household is trying to think of some way to use the present, is the largest diamond in the world. Sir Richard Solomon gave it to King Edward, the Transvaal government's agent-general.

ARM AND LEG CUT OFF BY ELECTRIC

Thomas Sweeney, who lives at No. 101 Newton street, Waltham, was struck by an electric car at Newton and Main streets, that city, at about midnight yesterday and had one leg were cut off by the wheels. Sweeney is in the Waltham Hospital and in a most critical condition.

GUILD SPENT $1,850 TO BE RE-ELECTED

It cost Governor Guild just $1,850 for his re-election, according to his return filed with Secretary Olin yesterday, and as he received something over 180,000 votes they cost him about ten cents apiece. He declares that he contributed $1,000 to the Republican State Committee. He gave $500 to the Boston City Committee and the other $350 to the Republican Club.

"PLAY IN A HALL? NEVER!"

Mrs. Pat. Campbell, who declares she will not appear in Boston unless a theatre is obtained. This photo shows her as the "Second Mrs. Tanqueray," a role she was scheduled to present in Hub.

MRS. CAMPBELL DRAWS LINE AT SYMPHONY HALL

Actress in New York States She Will Appear Only in Boston Theatres.

MAY NOT COME TO HUB

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Among the passengers on the Lusitania was Mrs. Pat Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell, who was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Stella Pat Campbell, and her son, Alan Campbell, was surprised when told that she was not to open next Monday night in "Electra." She was irritated when told that Symphony Hall had been rented for her in Boston and said:

"I shall not play in a hall. My contract reads that I must have the best theatres."

Pinky Panky Poo, Mrs. Campbell' dog, was clad in a coat of Astrachan fur, and, tucked under his mistress' arm, at this juncture turned his head and the conversation was interrupted. Poor Pinky, now in his seventeenth year, is but a shadow of his former self. His fore legs have shrunken and his fur coat yesterday hung loose—when it could get a chance to hang at all—and he seemed bored with everything. He seems, also, to be losing the sight of both eyes, and as for teeth, they are all gone.

When the party reached the Plaza Hotel, where they will remain during their stay in New York, a great grief awaited dog and mistress. In the new basketry there is in force a rule about dogs which expressly not even a Pinky Panky Poo, and Mrs. Campbell found on the sign an agreement making her responsible for Pinky's good conduct.

But this was not all. Dogs are not allowed in the elevators except in charge of visitors, and poor Pinky found himself forced to use either the special elevator used by the maids or the baggage elevator.

WOLF'S STORE SHOWS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Floor Space Increased and Lighting Facilities Are Now Much Better.

OTHER PLANS UNDER WAY

In the midst of "calamity howls," talk of financial depression and necessity for restricting business enterprises, a refreshing note of optimism is sounded by the proprietor of "Wolf's, My Clothier," the outfitting store at the corner of Washington and Hanover streets.

Instead of admitting the "panic" situation or curtailing his business, Mr. Wolf is doing exactly the opposite. In proof of his confidence that times are good and will be good, he has just completed one radical improvement in his store and is making plans for additional ones, to be installed as soon as possible.

Eliminate Dividing Wall.

Every patron entering the store to-day will notice the change best made. A long dividing wall, which formerly separated the overcoat department from the main front, has been wholly eliminated. This leaves an uninterrupted floor sweep from the street front to the rear, giving an effect of largely increased interior.

In addition, the lighting facilities of the entire ground floor are notably enhanced, the large windows in the rear now shedding light into the front store that formerly was cut off by the dividing wall.

The main stairway and the cashier's gallery have been subjected to necessary changes, incident to the removal of the dividing wall. The whole change makes a decided betterment in the aspect of the store and is more convenient for both employes and patrons. Additional changes, especially in the manner of showing goods, are to be installed in due time.

Mr. Wolf is Optimistic.

A certain moral effect of such enlargement at this uneasy juncture in the business world is admitted. When asked if he thought the times called for conservative administration, Mr. Wolf said:

"I do not see why necessarily. If a business increase demands certain improvements, then they should be made. To refuse for one reason or another, I have even further enlargements in mind, rather than restrictions."

This latest improvement at Wolf's is the first since ninety years after the first start of Mr. Wolf on his present site hardly larger than the area now given to show windows alone.

No Chemicals for Anty Drudge.

Mrs. Neighbor—"Anty Drudge, I'm sure you must use chemicals in your wash. I've boiled my clothes and rubbed them till my fingers are blistered, but they look yellow beside yours."

Anty Drudge—"No, I didn't use chemicals, nor I didn't boil them nor rub them hard. I used Fels-Naptha in lukewarm water. Fels-Naptha took the dirt out of my clothes while you were rubbing dirt into yours. That makes the difference."

What soap will you use to wash clothes?

If you insist on weakening your clothes by boiling them, wearing them out by hard-rubbing, putting up with all the inconveniences of hot fires, nauseous steaming suds and yellow clothes, it doesn't matter which you use.

But if you want to do your washing comfortably, in cold or lukewarm water, without hard work and in half the time—then there is only one soap for you—and that soap is Fels-Naptha.

The reason why is in the different way Fels-Naptha is made. The results speak for themselves. Get Fels-Naptha from your grocer and try it. But be sure and use it the Fels-Naptha way—no hot water. Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

SAVINGS LOST, WOMAN STRAYS INTO WOODS

Special to the Boston American.

Mrs. Jones is employed in the Alber shirt factory. With her husband's earnings and her own she had saved $84 which she carried to and from work, fearing its loss. On the way home from work Tuesday she lost the money, however.

She searched for it in vain. Despairing, she wandered away and was seen no more until discovered in the Rindge woods.

TAFT STARTS FOR EUROPE

Special Cable to Boston American.

MANILA, Nov. 9.—Secretary Taft took his departure for Vladivostok on board the flagship Rainbow to-day. He expects to arrive at Vladivostok on the morning of November 18. He will, in that case, leave for St. Petersburg the next day.

Secretary Taft's departure was the occasion of an enthusiastic demonstration by the people of the city. He was escorted from the Governor's residence to the wharf in the launch by the military, and there reviewed a parade of the troops of the schools, the troops and many civil organizations. Before he left the reviewing stand he made a brief address.

The crowd unhitched the horses from his carriage and drew it through the streets to the dock, the school boys following amid great cheering. At the harbor craft, profusely decorated, followed the launch containing the Taft party to the Rainbow, which was boarded by Governor General Smith, Major General Wood, the insular officers and the assemblymen to bid the departing guests farewell.

He has now lost his job and wants to be a marine again.

KAISER AND EMPRESS SAIL FOR ENGLAND

FLUSHING, Holland, Nov. 9.—Kaiser Wilhelm and his consort sailed on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern to-day for England. A brilliant suite, including several members of the German Cabinet, accompanies them. The British channel fleet, commanded by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, acts as the Hohenzollern's escort from Flushing to Portsmouth.

The royal party travelled by train from Berlin to Flushing. The Kaiser seemed in good spirits and full health, despite numerous recent stories of his illness, and the Kaiserin were informed just before their departure of the birth of a son to the Crown Prince and both sent messages to the father and mother.

After a week's stay at Windsor, the Kaiser will go to the Isle of Wight for a fortnight.

SECOND SON TO CROWN PRINCE

The first, also a son, died a year after his father, to the German crown, was born July 4, 1906, and named William Frederick Francis Joseph Christian Olaf.

This time he will travel with Erbelorb, winner of the St. Louis balloon race, and the Germania's big balloon, Pommern, will be used.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 9.—Yale played her first hard game since her tussle with West Point, to-day with the Brown eleven, which nearly defeated Harvard last Saturday. Every member of the Yale team was in the pink of condition except Paige, and he did not play.

The Brown players on their arrival announced their intention of crossing the Yale goal line for the first time this season. The team was in tip-top shape for the fray, and the game was looked upon here as likely to be the best on the local gridiron this season.

As a preliminary to the varsity struggle the Yale and Princeton freshmen played their annual game. The youngsters were evenly matched, and a hard game was looked for.

TUFTS WILL F'ACE AMHERST AGGIES ON LOCAL OVAL

The Tufts Cubs football team had its last practice on the Hill Campus, Tufts College, yesterday afternoon in preparation for the Amherst Aggie game to-day. Coaches Whelan and Hoover gave the men only three quarters of an hour, but the work was quite stiff for a Friday's practice. Contrary to the usual custom on the day before a game Jay Whelan lined up the varsity against the second team for a brief ten minute scrimmage. This week of all the men has been hard at work. The Tufts line-up this afternoon will be: Hubbard, left end; Burleigh, left tackle; Hurd, left guard; Ireland, centre; Hopkins, right guard; Chase, right tackle; Dickson, right end; Captain Green, quarterback; Waller, left halfback; Keefer, right halfback; Hooper, fullback.

The game will be played on Tufts Oval. Tufts College, and is scheduled for 2.30 p. m.

The annual dip of the annual football between the two leading prep schools, Exeter and Andover, will be played at Exeter this afternoon.

Exeter intends to win, and has secured about 100 megaphones, and the students, so equipped, will encourage the Blue and Brown. Exeter, slightly the heavier and more experienced team, is the strong favorite, saying made the better record in its preliminary games. Exeter has the nucleus of last year's team, which Andover defeated, 6 to 0, while Andover's eleven has been developed by a new coach, and from the hitherto and most inexperienced material which the academy has had to draw from in many years.

Exeter has played ten games this year and lost only two, having been defeated, 6 to 5, by the Yale freshmen who defeated Andover, 12 to 0, and later, 12 to 0 and by the Princeton freshmen, 4 to 0. In and by the Princeton freshmen, 4 to 0. In the second team games Exeter defeated Harvard's second team, 11 to 0, the same team playing a 0 to 0 tie game with Andover's second.

Exeter scored against only by the Yale and Princeton youngsters, and Colby, the Yale freshmen crossing the P. E. A. goal line the only time it has been crossed this year, the other two teams scoring on field goals. Exeter's list of victories includes those over the Maine colleges, Rated Bowdoin and Colby, which were defeated by scores of 5 to 0, 22 to 0 and 22 to 4, respectively.

Andover has not played so many games as Exeter this Fall, winning four, losing three, and tieing one. Andover has scored 44 points to 46 points by its opponents.

Jim Hogan, Exeter's old captain and later at Yale as a tackle, captain and coach, has selected the academy team's development this Fall, and it has shown steady improvement all season. The team is regarded as being exceptionally well-drilled and coached, as it has a splendid attack, and defensively has made an unusual showing several times, having made a decisive stand near its goal line. It was fumbling which gave the Tiger freshmen their chance to score.

Exeter expects to win, but is not over confident, for Andover many times has beaten a team which was given it went into the game for Exeter was regarded as a sure victor.

Andover has been working up a fast, aggressive, offensive game. The line is lighter than Exeter's, but has consistently improved, and Andover's light backfield is looked upon as one of the fastest and best that ever has represented the academy, notwithstanding that it is light and dry-kicker, and the team will doubtless use his versatility in its plan for attacking Exeter.

Exeter should show up stronger in the middle of the line, but Andover has good ends. Andover will endeavor to play an open game, one in which the speed of its backs and ends will tell, and will rely on this and hope for a continued weakness on the part of Exeter to handle kicks.

Following are the scores of the games in the twenty-one years played:

FOOTBALL AT HOLY CROSS IN BAD WAY

WORCESTER, Nov. 9.—Things are breaking badly for the Holy Cross football team, and it is rumored among the student body that unless present signs fall the eleven will be smashed in the course of a week.

All year there has been a cloud hanging over the squad, and in spite of all that Coach Timothy F. Larkin could do the "hard luck" bugaboo followed hard on the heels of the players.

The clouds came together and burst in a real cyclone a few days ago, when George W. Jones, the clever halfback, and Frank Paliotti, the giant tackle, left the team without a moment's warning. Jones was disgruntled because Coach Larkin took him out of the Fordham game last Saturday after he had missed several punts and fumbles. He jumped the team Monday night. Paliotti quit the following day.

Because of the desertions Holy Cross team Manager Mansfield has been forced to cancel the game that had been arranged with Villa Nova for Nov. 16. It is understood that as a last resort he will try his hardest to get a game on between Holy Cross and Worcester Tech for Nov. 16 to fill in the date, and arouse some enthusiasm in the team's work. If he fails in this plan there is no telling what will happen to the college football, teams in seasons to come.

CROSS COUNTRY CHAMP FOR HUB SCHOOLS

There is going to be an interscholastic cross-country championship race held in Boston the latter part of the month or the first week in December, and suitable prizes are to be awarded to the school scoring the greatest number of points and to the first three runners who finish in the race. Four schools have teams in training already, and there is little doubt that more will be added when the proposition is shown in its new light.

The first interscholastic championship race this year will probably permit each school to enter seven men, the first four scoring, as per the old Intercollegiate system. It will be manifestly unfair to allow a school to start two or three stars and have the added privilege of starting seven.

At present three courses are under consideration for the Brookline event, where there is ample field territory, and the best course considered is one through the fields of Franklin Park. Another advantageous feature is that the finish is in front of Parker Hill, Roxbury, the start being from the entrance of the St. Alphonsus A. A.

RIVAL SCHOOLS PLAY TO-DAY

Considerable interest is being manifested in the cotton High School League game between Boston Latin and Mechanic Arts High football teams on the Latter street grounds this afternoon. Both schools have succeeded in piecing strong teams on the field, and this afternoon's game will be a great measure give interscholastic football followers a chance to see who the probable champion will be at the season's close.

Dr. Maguire, the coach, has made many changes in the Boston Latin this week. Ryder is at end instead of tackle. Thompson, who played guard, is at right tackle, while Captain Elwood is playing left tackle. Simpson, who has been out of the game for some time, will probably play this afternoon, and he should strengthen Latin's chances considerably.

Both teams practiced hard yesterday in preparation for to-day's battle, and at present everything points to a very close game.

Coach Hapgood of Mechanic Arts will have a formidable aggregation on the field. Between Wingerle, star halfback, and Rutherford, the crack quarter-back, there should be something doing in the scoring line.

The English High team will take in the game.

GARDNER BEATS RUSSELL EASILY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., battered Unk Russell, of this city, around the ring at the Industrial Boxing Club until he was tired and then eased up. Gardner's victory was of the lopsided order.

He gave one of the greatest exhibitions of defensive boxing ever witnessed here when he easily circled around the ring, permitted Russell to whale away at him.

At times Gardner blocked Russell's swings and at other times he merely stepped out of the road to show the large crowd how easily he could do it. On the other hand, whenever Gardner wanted to land a punch he did so. He sent vicious straight lefts to Russell's mouth, nose and eyes, uppercut him on the jaw and swung and landed on any part of Unk's anatomy that he cared to put the punch.

After four rounds of hammering Russell Gardner eased up and made no attempt to cut the next short.

Russell gave a great exhibition of gameness and was always coming in, but after the fifth he strafed was to get him more punishment. By the finish one of Russell's eyes was closed, his nose and lips were swollen and his body was sore.

PARK SQUARE BIKE TRACK WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT

Boston's new indoor cycle track, at the Park Square Rink, will be formerly opened to-night with a motor-paced race of fifteen miles the star feature. Hugh MacLean, champion of the Australasias, and Eddy Downing of San Jose, Cal., the champion of the West, are the pair who will combat behind the engines.

The Westerner is in fine trim, and may surprise the talent by taking MacLean's measure. The local flyer is a revelation to Eastern track followers, and is riding like the wind.

The track is the fastest in the world, even surpassing that of Madison Square Garden, for obtaining speed, and to-night new records for indoor tracks are sure to be made in all of the events.

The banks are so steep, in spite of the fact the legal limit is exceeded, riders are forced to pike along at top gait or take chances of a spill.

The finest collection of riders in the world will fare the starter in the sprint events, as all the men who have been training for the six-day race next week will be in the saddle.

There will be a duel of speed between the East and the West when MacLean starts Eddy Root in a match.

MacLean defeated all comers in this section last season, and after being beat this summer, while the California ranchman did not ride in the East, he won the City, the scene of the motor races in the West. At the Salt Palace track Root was defeated every man he faced, including Waltham, who went West thinking that Salt Lake would make a good Pork Pot Hunt.

All the men signed for the six-day race, which starts next Monday, will line up in the Massachusetts championships of ten miles. A special prize will be offered to the winner of the scratch race, the end of each mile, which will result in the keenest competition.

There will also be a one-mile professional scratch-up and a one-mile lap race for amateurs.

BIG DEMAND FOR DARTMOUTH GAME TICKETS

There is an unusually large demand for tickets to the Dartmouth-Harvard game November 16, and owing to the fact that the Yale game tickets are limited this year, it is believed the stadium will be filled when the boys from Hanover line up against the Crimson.

A large section has been reserved for Dartmouth alumni, and tickets may be secured by applying to H. H. Lane, Hanover, N. H. This must be done in the same person at the New Hampshire Club, Boston, next week up to Friday. Last year but one section on the Dartmouth side of the stadium was put on public sale, and Dartmouth men are advised to make application for tickets to Mr. Lane, the college representative.

LONGBOAT SUSPENDED.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—Tom Longboat, the noted Indian runner, has been suspended by the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, which is the handing of the A. A. U. in its fight for athletic supremacy against the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union, which has been in existence for years.

ROXBURY LATIN BEAT N. AND G. 45 TO 0

Outclassed in every position, the Noble and Greenough football boys were soundly thrashed by the Roxbury Latin speedy kickers, 45 to 0. The game was played at the Cedar Street Grounds, Newton Centre, and was in the Interpreparatory League series.

Captain Connolly was the mainstay of the Latin School team, and three times he carried the ball over for a touchdown.

Hill's kicking was also a feature, and he made the goal five times. Summary:

PURSLANE WON FIRST RACE AT AQUEDUCT

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Nov. 9.—To-day is the last Saturday of racing to be seen on a local track until next year. The crowd expected to enjoy the last day of racing is at hand and they turned out to the number of at least 20,000. The three stellar events were a fitting climax to a week-end's racing and a large number who will not be able to attend next week's racing meet after the bookies with a vengeance in order to make Christmas money and have some left to start in next Spring.

The first important event on the card was the Queensboro Steeplechase Handicap. It brought out Thistledale, a famous performer both on the flat and over the jumps, and he is a hot favorite wherever he starts. The Oakdale, for two-year-olds, was another feature and brought out the contrants are Live Wire, Royal Tourist and Faivado.

The Edgecomere for all ages, at a mile and a furlong, was the principal event of the day, and while the field was small, it included some of the best racers of the season.

The Results.

Football Critics May Change Value of Scoring

FIELD GOAL HELPS WEAK TEAMS

Since scoring by goals from the field has become such a prominent factor in the new football game, much attention has been drawn to the play, and the spectators and coaches alike have given much attention to the advisability of changing the value of such a score. At present the value of a goal from the field is four points, and two of them count better than one touchdown. It is argued by some that it is quite possible for a team to make an opponent without being able to cross that opponent's goal line, while their own goal line may be crossed every time without winning the game eight to six. However, there seems to be a diversity of opinion upon the subject, as will be found below.

The contention is made that under the new rules it is comparatively easy for a weaker team to get possession of the ball on the stronger team's 25-yard line. The weaker team would very often find it beyond their powers to carry the ball across the goal line, but having the ball in close on their team could drop a goal with reasonable ease and thus score four points against five for a touchdown.

Eighteen Goals Kicked.

The dropping of goals from the field has not been resorted to by the big five of the East so much to date as it has been in smaller college circuits, but this can be put down to the fact that the big fellows have not been called upon to try it except as an experiment now and then. The majority of games to date in which the quintet has figured have been more or less practice affairs and have been easy to score in the ordinary way. The smaller fry, on the other hand, have been playing games which it was unlikely they could defeat by straight goal line attacks and for that reason goals from the field were in order. On one Saturday during the season no less than eighteen goals for a total of seventy-two points were made in the Big Four and Middle West. The most conspicuous case was Cornell's defeat by Penn State when the latter got two goals from the field while Cornell made only one touchdown.

Navy Pat on Rules.

Lieutenant Commander Joseph M. Reeves, U. S. N., head coach of the Naval Academy team, says that as though that a goal from the field was now given its proper weight under the rules, and that it did not favor assigning it a lower value. He called attention to the fact that the points obtained from a touchdown, even though the goal was not kicked, was greater than that secured from a goal from the field, and that consequently there could be no valid reason for lessening its value. He said that he considered the field goal a very interesting and valuable play, and that required the combined efforts of all members of the team to get the ball into position for the kick, and then a good kicker, as well as the individual skill of the player. He opposed a reduction of the value assigned to the field goal because the ball could hardly be attempted if two of them counted only as much as a touchdown and resulting goal.

Coach Roper of Princeton says he thinks a count of four for a goal from the field is all right. A team that gets near enough to a goal and risks losing the ball, has a chance of making a touchdown, should be entitled to four points if the kicker makes the goal. When asked if he did not think one man sometimes had too much to do with winning a game he said he thought not, as the rest of the team keep the opponents back and prevented them from blocking the ball. Captain McCormick agreed with Mr. Roper's statement.

Four Points Suits Harvard.

The weight of opinion among Harvard coaches and players is that a goal from the field should not count less than it does at present. Coach Cutts, who has charge of the Harvard team, says that the game under the new rules is "duke ball" instead of football. Almost all scores in the new game, he said, "are made on dukes." A touchdown between two evenly matched teams by the old style of play is almost impossible, but a goal from the field is easy, but a score on any of the new rules is a touchdown. The kicker makes the kick, is a duke, so the only question is on the relative difficulty of a score by touchdowns. Thus, he says, a goal from the field should count for no less than four points, for it is a comparatively hard duke to get.

Coach Leary, in charge of the Harvard eleven, also of the opinion that a goal from the field was rated about right at four points. He said that he is worth as much as four points," he says. "I do not think that it should be worth any more, for it should never be equal in value to a touchdown. On the other hand I think that its relative value in the score has been changed; it has tended to go up instead of down. Touchdowns come mostly on open play in the new game, and are thus more dependent upon luck, as is the goal from the field. The new rules have tended to make the game more open and a touchdown of nearer equal value."

Considerable discussion has arisen at Yale over the relative value given goals from the field under the new rules and under the present rules, and Yale seems to be pretty united in favoring a change. Captain Camp and Coach W. P. Kinsy were discussing the matter, and both favored a reduction in the number of points given a goal from the field. They, however, advocated scoring two points instead of one for goals from touchdowns. It is argued that a successful drop kick made with the opposing line bearing down is deserving of at least four points as compared with a touchdown counting five. It can be seen, however, that a kick from touchdown is worthy of a larger rating than one point. In the event that it be conceded a goal from drop kick is worth four points, Yale will make no demand or even suggestion for change this year in the rules, but believes that if any change is eventually to be made it should be toward giving a goal from touchdown at least a two-point credit. It is not thought that the scoring of four points for a goal from the field is too much.

NO LEGS BUT WANTS MATCH.

Alf Comtse, of Cincinnati, a one-time professional long-distance runner, is after Dr. O'Leary for a unique match.

Comtse lost both of his legs in a railroad accident in 1897, and now moves around in an invalid chair. He wants a match with any man in the country, Dan O'Leary preferred. Comtse provides that he is to use his cart, which he is to propel with his arms, and will go any distance O'Leary wishes. Comtse has many records, and in 1881 walked from Hot Springs to Covington, Ky., in eleven days and eleven nights on a wager of $500, made by Emery Green, which he won.

SCORE DIE BY HURRICANE IN MARSEILLES

MARSEILLES, France, Nov. 9.—Rescuing parties are searching the ruins of many big buildings along the water front to-day for victims of last night's storm. Damage was done throughout the entire city, but it was among the docks that the loss, both of property and life, was greatest.

So great is the confusion and so appalling the accumulation of the debris that it will probably be slightest before a definite statement can be made concerning the number of killed. It is believed at least a score perished. Most of them were crushed under collapsing structures.

The storm began with a furious hurricane and ended with a downpour of rain which flooded the streets in many places several feet deep. The gas works was put out of commission and most of the city was in darkness all night, while police say thieves took advantage of the darkness and confusion to rob scores of houses and stores, but no accurate estimate can yet be made of the amount of their plunder.

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms
Wise Piano Buyer

Don't hover around the high-priced piano district—like the moth around the flame. You'll surely get burned if you do.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer. Come up where the rents are not so high, where there are no agents' commissions for you to pay, and where there are no ironclad piano trust agreements in force to make you pay a big, unfair price. Come up to the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms, where we scalp the piano trust every day. Every day is bargain day up here.

"Roaring" Horses Can Be Cured or Greatly Benefited

This News to Farmers and Other Horse Owners Is of Great Importance

We are glad to tell owners of horses that the particular breathing trouble known as "roaring" is now curable in a majority of cases, and to be susceptible of great improvement IN ALL CASES.

Some time ago this newspaper heard that Professor W. L. Williams, of the Department of Surgery in the New York State College of Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y., was achieving extraordinary results in treating "roaring" horses.

Roaring is a complaint that hitherto has rendered almost useless numbers of high-class horses. A slight touch of distemper, or strangles, or a bad cold may leave a horse a "roarer." The roaring horse makes a disagreeable sound; he cannot gallop or even trot any distance, as his wind gives out; the insufficient supply of air interferes with his heart action, and unfits him for slow, hard work.

The announcement by friends of Cornell that Professor Williams was performing an operation to cure roarers seemed to us of the greatest possible importance to farmers and all horse owners.

Accordingly, we sent to Professor Williams at Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y., two horses afflicted with roaring. One was a big chestnut gelding, a half-bred horse about seventeen hands high, and a very bad roarer. The other was a thoroughbred gelding, unable to gallop more than a few rods, because of difficult breathing.

The operation was performed by Professor Williams with absolute success in the case of the thoroughbred, and with very GRATIFYING success in the case of the other horse.

The thoroughbred was cured absolutely. After the operation he could gallop as rapidly and as far as ever. In all respects he appeared to be an absolutely sound horse so far as breathing is concerned. The operation simply left him unable to whinny when he desired to communicate his emotions to other horses, and that was no loss.

The big chestnut was rendered at least one hundred per cent. more valuable by the operation. For slow work and trotting work he was as good as ever. He made no sound at all in breathing, except at a hard gallop. And although he was a little noisy then, he is ABLE to gallop on indefinitely, whereas before he could not gallop more than two hundred yards.

Farmers and other horse owners are advised to communicate with Professor Williams at Cornell College, Ithaca, N. Y. So far as possible their communications will receive attention. We believe that the various State institutions throughout the country, if they are not acquainted with Professor Williams's operation, should inform themselves in regard to the facts at once.

Horses sent to Cornell are operated upon WITHOUT ANY CHARGE WHATEVER. The desire of the institution is to have the students observe the operation, and learn by observation. A nominal charge of fifty cents a day is made for each horse, for feed and care, while it is at the college. Of course the owner must pay expenses both ways. But it is not necessary to leave a man with the horse. The horse should stay at the college a week at least after being operated upon.

The operation is simple, as described by Professor Williams. It consists in removing, with the knife, a small part of the breathing apparatus. The disease of roaring consists in an atrophy of this peculiar little part, smaller than the little finger.

The inflammation of a severe cold leaves this part apparently uncontrollable by the horse, and in breathing it falls back into the windpipe and causes a choking and the noise that is heard. When it is cut out the windpipe is free, and, although the horse may or may not continue to make some noise in moving quickly, he is able to get a full supply of air, and to do his work thoroughly.

The operation involves simply a small cut in the throat, just where it is hidden by the jawbone, and another cut lower down, to enable the horse to breathe through a tube while the operation is performed. Usually neither cut leaves any visible scar when the operation is over.

We feel that we are doing farmers especially a favor in calling their attention to the possibility of this cure.

Use ALL Your Lungs

And You Will Not Need to Worry About Taking Cold

You know, of course, that pneumonia and many of the deadly diseases of Winter BEGIN with colds.

Colds of themselves are annoying. People who have them devote valuable time and more valuable energy to getting rid of them.

Medicines of all sorts, good and bad, are taken in great quantities. Sympathetic friends contribute advice. You are told to soak your feet in hot water, to drink whiskey, to keep out of draughts, to wear rubbers, to eat little, to eat a great deal, to stay at home and attend to your cold, to go to work and forget it.

Do any or all of these things and the cold continues to make you unhappy.

Once contracted, IT MUST RUN ITS COURSE, and its course will be long or short according to the number of fighting corpuscles in your blood whose business it is to drive it out.

If your constitution is fairly good, these tiny policemen will soon dispose of the germs which cause the cold. But if you are weak or enfeebled, the intruders will get the upper hand, and soon you will be unable to resist other and more deadly enemies, the germs of pneumonia and consumption, which are drifting about EVERYWHERE, ready to swoop down on you and fatten their families on your tissues.

Fortunately, while CURING a cold is not always easy, PREVENTING one is a simple matter.

The oxygen in the air is very unhealthful food for disease germs, and, if you keep it in your system in sufficient quantities they will not try to pasture there.

The air, you know, is still abundant. Your lungs have the power to breathe in all of it that you need.

But to keep in health you must exercise that power.

Breathe deep. Use ALL your lungs. Take a hundred or more deep full breaths when you are in the open air. Develop the muscles of your chest so they can open your lungs to their greatest capacity.

When you sleep, sleep with a window wide open. Keep your body, and especially your feet, warm by covering it, but always lie so that your nose has free access to the air.

If you use your lungs regularly to nearly their full capacity, and take care to fill them with fresh air whenever you have the opportunity, you will escape the colds that are so troublesome and avoid the grave danger of contracting more dangerous maladies.

No Matter How Good She Is, the Woman Who Fails to Make Her Home Attractive Is Not a Good Wife

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal Examiner

WHATEVER else she may do in the world, whatever may be her talents and achievements, no woman who fails in making an attractive home has fulfilled her mission in life.

Nature intended woman for the home-keeper; man for the provider.

A hundred voices of protest may sound, saying that woman is forced into being the provider by man's failure to do his duty; and that, being the provider, she is excusable if she is not at the same time the homekeeper.

But if she becomes of necessity the wage-earner, let her first wage be applied toward the keeping of an orderly home—a home which rests the eye, the heart and the mind to enter.

It costs little time and less money to do this.

It is a mental condition, not a financial condition, which lies at the bottom of a pleasing home.

There was a man, earning a fine income, husband of a handsome and "good" woman, and father of several beautiful children, who was said to be neglectful of his home. He preferred clubs and hotels, and his family grieved over his delinquencies.

But those who entered the house did not wonder at the man's frequent absences.

Not a Good Wife

THE word Home was a misnomer; it was Desolation personified. Disorder, neglect and ugliness met the eye at every turn.

Five dollars invested in cretonnes and denims, one dollar's worth of paint and two days' work would have transformed a hideous living room into a bower of prettiness and fifteen minutes' daily attention would have kept the disorderly place neat and attractive.

The wife, however virtuous and "good," was nevertheless not a good wife or a good mother who would permit her family to live in such surroundings.

Nothing but the most abject poverty can excuse ugliness in the appointments of a home in these days of beautiful cheap draperies; and those housewives who cannot afford even the cheapest draperies can at least keep the home in order.

No genius, no intellectual attainments, no ability to make money, can excuse a woman for being carelessly attired or dwelling in a littered and untidy and comfortless home.

The first and most imperative duty of woman is to be a homemaker, and to render that home as attractive as is possible with the time and means at her command.

Attractive, Not Costly

IT is not mahogany or rosewood or old oak furniture which makes a pleasing home; it does not require real lace curtains and damask hangings and rare china and bric-a-brac. Many homes so decorated are loveless and lonely.

Many a small home, where wooden boxes have been converted into useful furniture, and where denim and cretonne and serim have taken the place of plush and damask, are more attractive and restful to the eye and mind than the stately house where comfort is not found.

The orderly and delightful home is the outgrowth of a woman's wish. However she may be aided and supported in her desire for such a home by the husband or father, the woman must be filled with the love and appreciation of order and beauty before it can materialize and remain materialized.

Life holds little lasting pleasure outside of the home. Husbands and children have little chance of finding any joys which will recompense them for the memory of a disorderly and comfortless abiding place. No amount of unselfish affection or devotion can make a good wife and mother out of a woman who does not supply her family with an attractive home.

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

GRAND OPERA.

Bobbie, said my teecher, did you ever go to grand Opry, & heer the imortal strains of the grate masters?

Yes, I sed, one (1) time I went with my Ma, my Pa was going, too, but after we had our dinner he sed to Ma, heerwot, you & our darling son go to the Opry & I will be around the corner, playing a peaceful galm of bilyards with two (2) boon companyuns, Pa sed. After the Opry, he sed, I will meet you both at the cars, we shall have a banquet fit for the gods, my Pa sed, that is, if my boon companyuns doant show any reversals of form & talk my bankroll, he sed.

So Ma & me went to the Opry wich was Carmen. A beutiful gurl caim out & sung sum awful high notes, she had a frend wich was in the army, he was a yung soldier wich wanted to die for Spain but she told him Save yurself from such a Fate, there is no glory in dying for Spain, sed Carmen, unless you was in the Spannish-American war & was shot by Mister Rusevelt, she sed. Consider the littel bears, she sed, that live in the canebrakes, thay toil not neether do thay spin, yet even Solomon in all his glory was never half so much shot, she sed.

So the man sed he wud live for her & he sang sum lines that I cudent understand, Ma told me it meant that he was for her first, last & all the time & wud be willing to sine a lease for a fine flat.

Then the lady sang sum lines back at the braiv yung soldier, she sed You sing with much feeling, like Caruso, I guess I will marry you.

Then in the next act she fell in luv with a bull fiter, wich was called a Toryador, he had a good job killing bulls.

He was a fine looking feller, like Jefferis only not so big around the middle & a much better singer. He sang to Carmen so hard that she sed You are my affinity. Then she sang to him & he sed Well, if each of us can listen to the other singing we must be affinities, all rite.

Then when thay was making luv the yung soldier calm along & sed I am no Bull Fiter, he sed, but I have a good punch in my right hand, he sed, so here it is & he stabbed Carmen.

When she was dying she sang sum moar & I began to cry, & Ma sed Never mind, Bobbie, she is not realy dying, maybe you can hear her sing sum other day. Then I told Ma this was why I was crying.

Then we went & met Pa, wich was standing at the door of the theeter. Ah, he sed, here is my precious wife & precious son how did you enjoy the grate Opry, Pa sed.

Fine, sed Ma. It was Carmen. Glorious Spain, sed Pa, I can see its fair fields & sunny skys even as I stand here, Pa sed, rolling before me like a glorious panyrama, making me a brother of the stars, Pa sed. Glorious Spain! Let us take the Subway to our glorious flat, Pa sed.

How about the banquet, Ma sed.

When I think of Spain, Pa sed, I am too full for eeting, & besides, Pa sed, my friend Mister Keough was in grate form tonite, Pa sed, wich leeves me pritty close to the cloth. So we went hoam.
